CARS SMASHED IN SUNDAY COLLISION

No One Seriously Injured When Covington, Ky., Automobile Hits Another Broadside

FEW CUT BY BROKEN GLASS

Chris Selke of Newcastle Attempts to Avoid Being Struck at Road Intersection

A five-passenger automobile owned and driven by Chris Selke of Newcastle, was hit broadside in Circleville Sunday afternoon by an automobile driven by E. Smith of Covington, Ky. Both machines were very seriously damaged and had to be dragged into a local garage, but no one was seriously hurt.

A three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Selke was removed to a local hospital where two stitches were taken in a cut on his face, and an older boy suffered a few cuts on his face.

Mrs. Smith suffered severely from the shock and was also badly bruised on the head, and Mr. Cowager, who was riding in Smith's car, was cut on the right side of the face near the eye.

In the Selke machine were Mr. and Mrs. Selke and four children and Mr. Selke's mother. They were returning from Greensburg and their machine had just emerged from the angling road, leading on to state road No. 39, when the automobile driven by Smith, going south at a rapid clip, crashed into it. The left front fender and wheel were bent back against the radiator and the radiator was punctured. Headlights and windshield were broken.

Smith's car appeared to be damaged equally as badly. The right front wheel and fender were mashed down and the crank case was cracked. The radiator was caved in and the front axle bent and twisted. Mr. Selke said that he never saw the other machine coming from the north until he was almost to the turn and then it was too late to stop. Instead of "cutting" the corner, he said he guided his car straight for the right side of the road, making a wide turn.

The Newcastle man asserted that the driver of the other car apparently became confused, and instead of remaining on the right side of the road, swerved to the left, resulting in the collision.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Cowager were returning from Spiceland where they had been visiting relatives.

GOOD CROWD DESPITE INCLEMENT WEATHER

Thirty-Seven Members of Rushville Commandery in Line at Ascension Day Service

SON OF LUTHER BENSON TALKS

Thirty-seven members of Rushville commandery No. 49, Knights Templar, were in line at the annual Ascension Day service at Newcastle Sunday afternoon, despite the inclement weather. The local delegation numbers about fifty-five counting members of families of the Knights attending.

The service was held at the First Christian church and the address was delivered by Sir Knight P. M. Benson, a Newcastle attorney and son of the late Luther Benson, noted temperance advocate of his day and a native of Rush county. Rushville commandery member warmly praised him today for his oratorical ability and the merit which his address had. He is the republican candidate for prosecuting attorney of Henry county.

Special music at the service was provided by the Opello quartet of Newcastle. Other commanderies participating besides Newcastle and Rushville were Greenfield, Knights-town, Richmond, Muncie and Anderson.

YOUTH GETS TERM IN REFORMATORY

Gerald Palmer Admits Robbery of Elsbury Pea Store and is Sentenced for 1 to 8 Years

EXONERATES HIS BROTHER

Paul Palmer is Released and Charge Dismissed—Two Wives Given Allowance in Divorce Case

Gerald Palmer, age 19 years, who was placed in jail last week on a charge of larceny, in connection with the robbery of a store owned by Elsbury Pea in this city, appeared in court late Saturday and changed his plea to that of guilty, and was fined $6 and sentenced to the Indiana Reformatory for a period of time not less than one, nor more than 8 years.

Palmer and his brother, Paul Palmer, were arrested in Anderson last Monday, and returned here for trial. The prisoner pleaded guilty and exonerated his brother, and stated that he had committed the robbery by himself. The charge against the other was dismissed.

The prisoner will be taken Tuesday to the Pendleton institution to begin serving his term.

Judge Sparks allowed the plaintiffs in two divorce cases $7.50 a week support money, during the pendency of their cases. The two cases were filed last week, one by Ella Hittle against Ora Hittle, and the other by Carrie Flehart against Fred Flehart. Provisions for the payment of attorney fees also was made by the court, and the defendants in each case were ordered to pay.

A suit set for trial today, of the Olin-Wilmeth Company against the American Security Company, a complaint to replevin was not tried as the defendant this morning filed a motion for a change of venue from the county.

The suit of Valentine Ripberger against Herman Stevens, a complaint on a note demanding $575, was dismissed by the court, as the plaintiff failed to appear to prosecute his action, after the suit had been set for a hearing, and the parties notified.

In the case of the First National Bank of Lewisville against Floyd Cox, in which the plaintiff was awarded judgment recently, the defendant has filed a motion for a new trial, but no action was taken on the motion by the court.

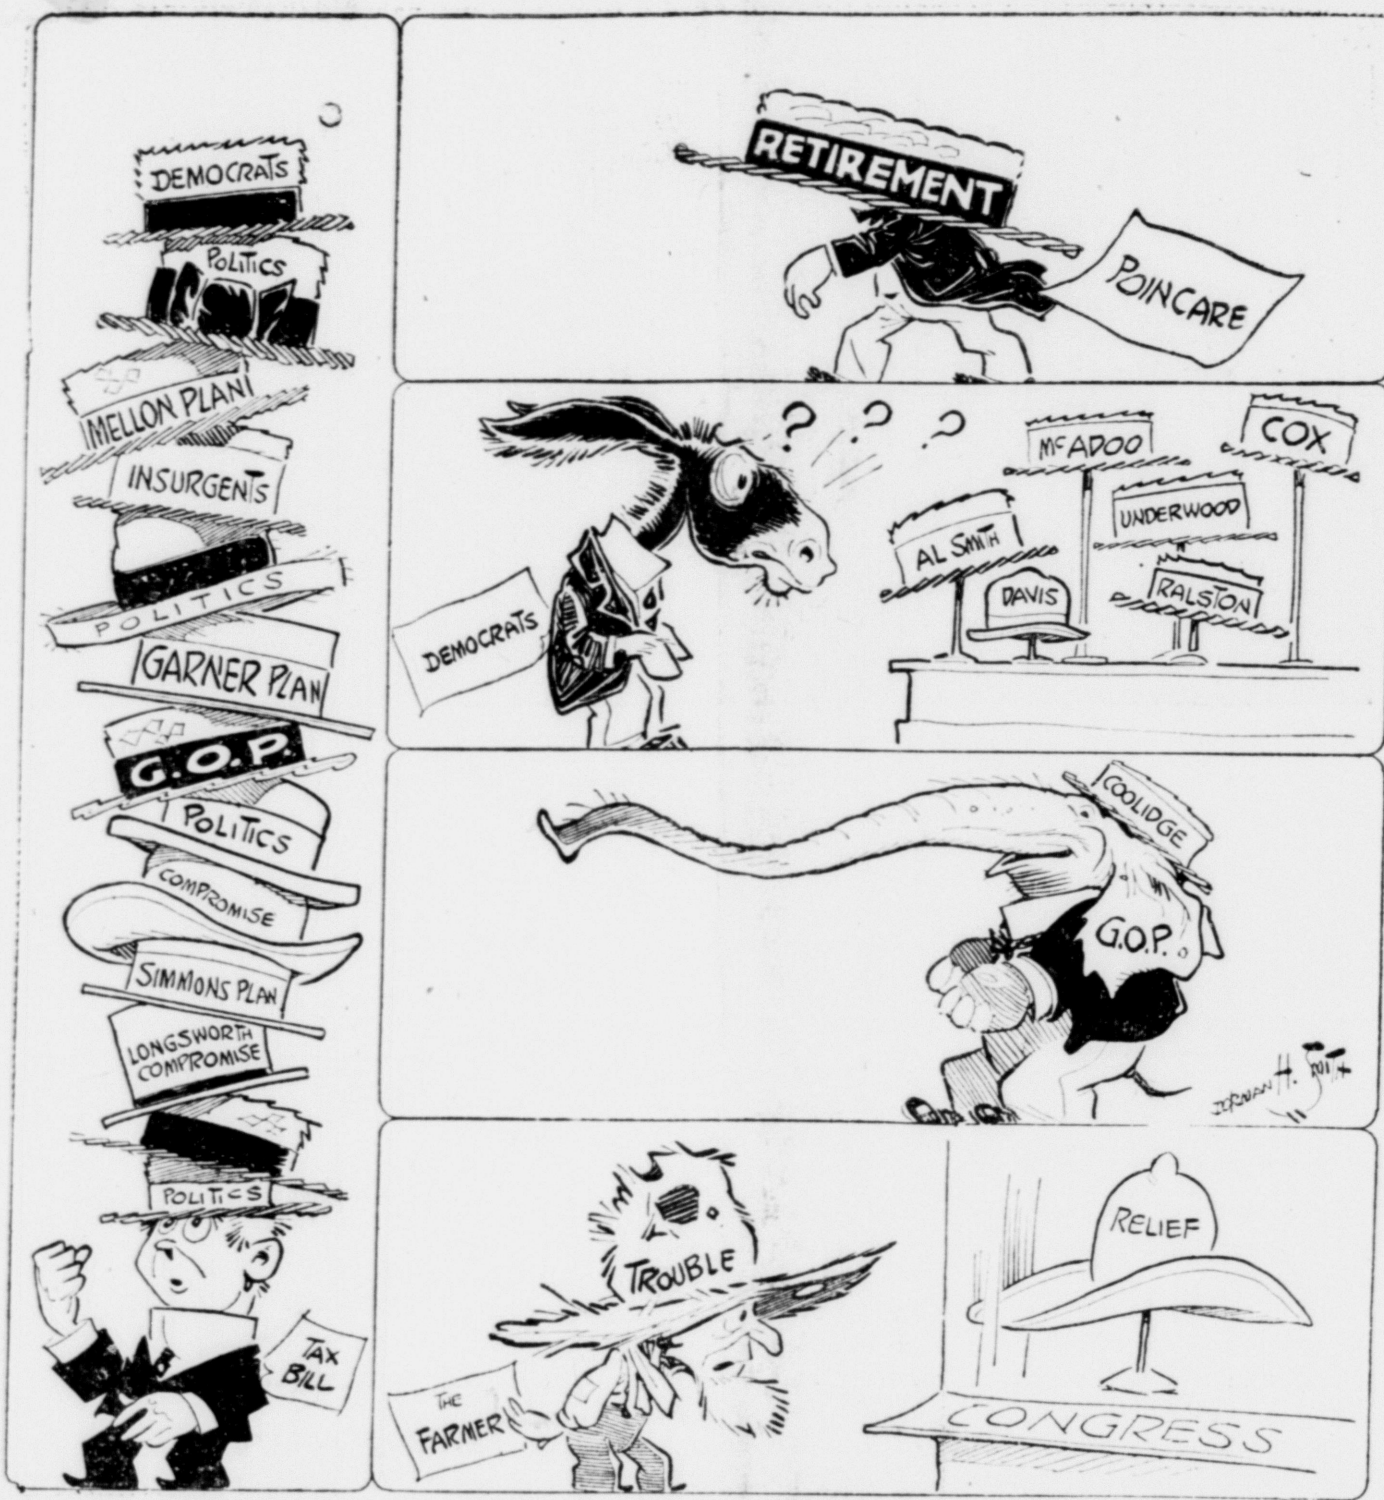

In the complaint of John H. Crea-craft against Harrie Jones, a damage suit asking $20,000 judgment for alleged injuries following an automobile accident, the plaintiff has filed a motion with the court, asking that the action be sent elsewhere for trial.

COMPROMISE TAX BILL IS APPROVED

Passed in House by Overwhelming Vote and Now Goes to the President for His Action

NINE HOLD OUT AGAINST BILL

Measure Provides For a 25 Percent Immediate Reduction in Taxes on 1923 Incomes

(By United Press)

Washington, May 26—The new compromise tax bill today received final congressional approval by the house.

It now goes to the president. Passed by the senate Saturday by a 60 to 6 vote, the house added its overwhelming endorsement to the measure, forecasting success in overriding a veto, if President Coolidge disapproves it.

The technical action came on a vote to accept the report of the conference, who drafted the compromise. The vote was 376 to 9.

The measure provides a 25 percent immediate reduction in taxes payable this year on 1923 incomes.

House factions were more satisfied with the compromise bill than were those in the senate, since the measure as arranged by conference, is, with the exception of the Simmons income tax rates, very similar to the house bill which the senate tore to pieces.

Not even the progressives held out against it in the lower body, because the limited publicity provision which senate progressives opposed, is virtually the same provision house progressives sponsored in the beginning. Democrat regard the whole measure as a Democratic bill. Republicans look on it as the best compromise obtainable and voted for it almost solidly.

House approval completed congressional action on the measure and it will now be sent to the White House. A day, and perhaps two, will elapse after the final vote, however, before it is put in President Coolidge's hands because of the necessary formalities of engrossing it, and having it signed by the presiding officers of both houses.

Fate of the bill at the White House is still doubtful.

PIONEER RESIDENT OF RUSH COUNTY IS DEAD

James Gray, Age 90, Expires Sunday at His Home in Mauzy Following 12 Days Illness

SPENT LIFE IN ONE TOWNSHIP

James Gray, age 90 years, a pioneer resident of Rush county, and a life long resident of Union township, died Sunday noon, at his home in Mauzy, death resulting from a twelve days illness with advanced age and complications.

The deceased was born on a farm in Union township on February 8, 1834, and had made his life there, having lately retired and moved to Mauzy. Mr. Gray had been an active farmer all his life until a few years ago when his eyesight failed, and he was forced to retire.

Mr. Gray's parents came to Indiana from West Virginia in the fall of 1822 and in 1824 bought a farm of 80 acres in Union township for $155, when the county was a wilderness. They had ten children, of whom James was the ninth. He grew to manhood on his father's farm and on December 20, 1857, he was united in marriage to Martha Jane Nichol. Of a family of twelve children, seven survive. Eleven grandchildren and four great grandchildren, also survive.

Besides the seven children, he leaves a widow, and the children are Will H. Gray of Glenwood, Mrs. Gilbert Hannah of Hammond, Andy Gray of Indianapolis, Vincent Gray of this county, Mrs. Hugh Beaver of Fayette county, Cary N. Gray of Aeton, and Mrs. O. G. Stevens of Mauzy.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock at the late residence in Mauzy, in charge of the Rev. Mr. Hawthorne, and burial will be made in East Hill cemetery Rushville.

Mrs. Sarah Howe of Indianapolis, daughter of Mrs. Sarah Kinnear of this city and sister of the late Irvin Kinnear, was stricken by apoplexy at the home of her brother, Joseph Kinnear, in Morristown Sunday, and little hope is held out for her recovery. Mrs. Howe is well known here.

Mrs. Earl Kennedy, who resides on a farm northwest of Arlington, underwent an operation at the Dr. Sexton hospital this morning, and her recovery is expected.

COOLIDGE SIGNS IMMIGRATION BILL

President Approves Measure Providing for Exclusion of Japanese Effective July 1

BILL'S OTHER PROVISIONS

After July 1, 1927, Immigration Will Be Limited to 150,000—Restricted to 10 Percent Monthly

By A. L. BRADFORD
(U. P. Staff Correspondent)

Washington, May 26—President Coolidge today signed the immigration bill providing for exclusion of Japanese effective July 1. The bill thus becomes a law.

In addition to the Japanese exclusion clause, the provision of the measure includes:

Quotas of all countries are fixed at 2 per cent basis fixed on the foreign born population in this country according to 1890 census.

After July 1, 1927 immigration will be limited to 150,000, each country getting a quota in this figure according to the national origins of the foreign population in the United States as shown by the 1920 census.

To prevent congestion and other difficulties at American ports, consular offices abroad may not issue visas to more than 10 per cent of a country's quota in any month.

Alien seamen on vessels touching at American ports may not land except for medical treatment.

Wives and children of American citizens and citizens of Canada and all western hemisphere republics are exempted from the quota provision.

Japan, through her envoy here, Ambassador Hanihara, at first protested last winter against the measure acted upon today by the president. Hanihara sent a communication to Secretary of State Hughes protesting against the bill then pending in congress. This letter never was made public, however.

Later, Hughes sent a letter to congress, giving the state department's views of different phases of the bill.

The letter contained strong objections to the Japanese exclusion provision, but Hughes' protest was ignored by congress.

When the bill came up for action in congress, the Japanese ambassador sent his famous note warning that enactment of the proposed law would result in "grave consequences" to the relations between the United States and Japan.

VITAL PART IN LIFE UNIVERSITY

Baccalaureate Speaker Tells Graduates They Have Finished Small Portion of Education

CLASS ATTENDS IN A BODY

All Life is Education, the Rev. H. W. Hargett Says, And None Can Escape it If They Will

"In completing the course of study in the public schools of Rushville you have finished a small but important part of the university of life," said the Rev. H. W. Hargett, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. church, in delivering the baccalaureate sermon to the Rushville high school class. "You began your education there before you were born, and you will continue it long after you have fallen asleep in the arms of mother earth. You cannot escape it if you would. Descend into the depths it is there, ascend into heaven it is there, take the wings of the morning and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea and there education will meet you for all life is education, somewhere, somewhere. If you desire earnestly the greatest gifts that life can bring, you will find that they can only be obtained by sitting at the feet of Him, who summed up life's curriculum in three words 'Learn of Me.'"

The members of the 1924 graduating class attended in a body and seats were reserved for them in the center of the Main Street Christian church, where union services were held in honor of the class. Members of the faculty and school board were also seated with the class.

Every available seat in the church was occupied and many stood during the address. Rushville pastors were seated on the platform and the Rev. E. G. McKibben of the First United Presbyterian church read the scriptural passages. The opening prayer was made by the Rev. W. R. Sage, pastor of the First Baptist church.

Mrs. C. E. Walden sang a solo and J. H. Schell, superintendent of the schools, introduced the speaker. The Rev. Mr. Hargett's subject was "Life's Royal University" and his text "1st Cor., 12:31—Desire earnestly the greater gifts, and Matt., 11:29—Learn of Me." He continued as follows:

"That we may understand the true meaning of education in a living universe let us consider the university, the students and the teachers."

"The University: It is the oldest of all universities. Yale was founded in 1701, Harvard in 1638, St. Thomas at Manila, the oldest under the American flag, was founded in 1605, San Marco at Lima, Peru, the oldest on American soil, was founded in 1551, Oxford the oldest on English soil is traced by tradition to 872, but our university antedates all of these for Adam began his studies there when God placed him in the garden to tell it and to dress it and by developing the garden yet more to develop the man."

"It is royal in its endowment. Back of it is no great millionaire, no wealthy state, but better yet, it is supported by Him who holdeth the wealth of the world in his hands."

"It is royal in its beauty. Its campus is the earth, its canopy the sky frescoed by sentinel stars at night and the drifting clouds by day. Everywhere nature is so thin a screen that the glory of Him 'whose dwelling is the light of setting suns and the round earth and the radiant air' is ever breaking through. WAY OUT OF WAR MUST BE FOUND

Rev. R. W. Sage Gives Three Reasons Why it Must Be Eradicated, in Memorial Sunday Sermon

ALL WAR VETERANS ATTEND

First Baptist Pastor Says War is Too Contagious, Makes Life Unsafe and Settles Nothing

The Rev. R. W. Sage, pastor of the First Baptist church, speaking at the Memorial Sunday services at that church Sunday morning, declared three things made it necessary to find a way out of war, after he had spoken eloquently of the meaning of Memorial Day.

War is too contagious, it makes the life of everyone unsafe and settles nothing, he set forth in advocating the eradication of war.

Veterans of all wars marched in a body to the church and attended the services and patriotic organizations were represented in the congregation.

The Rev. Mr. Sage spoke in part as follows:

"Remember the days of old, consider the years of many generations; ask thy father and he will show thee; thine elders and they will tell thee."

These words from the great farewell oration of Moses from our text. Two things are asked. First, that we call our memory into play over the days that have gone by. But merely to remember is not enough. On the one hand memory may lead us to open again the heart wounds of the past and thereby plunge us into the depths of despair. On the other hand it may lead to a merely sickly sentimentalism which is always despicable. But there is a deeper request. It is that we shall consider. Therefore, for these two reasons, that we may look back over the years and consider well their meaning, not only for us, but for those generations yet unborn, we have come together this morning.

"In the first place, I invite your attention to the fitness of Memorial Day. When this day was instituted it was not merely to add one holiday to the calendar. It was a day sanctified to the memory of those noble sons and daughters who rushed to the defense, men, who gave their lives that the ideals and traditions of this nation should be upheld. Memorial Day is a national necessity. We forget too easily."

"Three major wars have made their impress upon the pages of our history. Only a brief study of them will reveal how quickly we have come from the mountain tops of heroism and sacrifice back to the valley of the commonplace, there to forget many of their most costly sacrifices. Surely then we need this Memorial Day, that by its annual celebration our minds may be refreshed and our hearts renew their determination that these who have given their lives shall not have made their sacrifices in vain."

"But not only is there the fitness of Memorial Day, but there is its tragedy. Why do we have Memorial Day? One word will answer. War. The tragedy wrapped up in that one word. Only a glimpse of its heartache, its suffering, its blood and death will be enough to turn our hearts sore and sick. Homes are broken up, loved ones separated and sadder of all the finest of the nation's manhood is called upon to pass through a living hell and worse."

WANT CHILDREN TO ASSIST

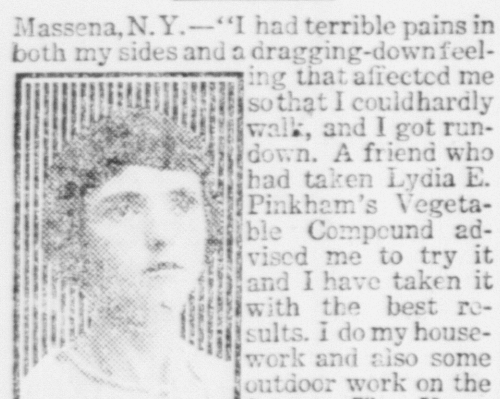

W. R. C. Urges Them to Participate in Decoration Day Ceremony

The Woman's Relief Corps wants all school children to know that they are invited to take part in the morning services on Decoration Day Friday. Let each child make it their duty to ask some other child to go, is the urgent appeal the corps is making.

The members of the organization promise the parents to watch over the children and to bring them to them safe. The children are requested to be at the court house to be ready to start for the cemetery promptly at nine o'clock. The corps will furnish each child with a flag.

MRS. BUSH TELLS OTHER WOMEN

How Pains in Side and Dragging Down Feelings Were Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

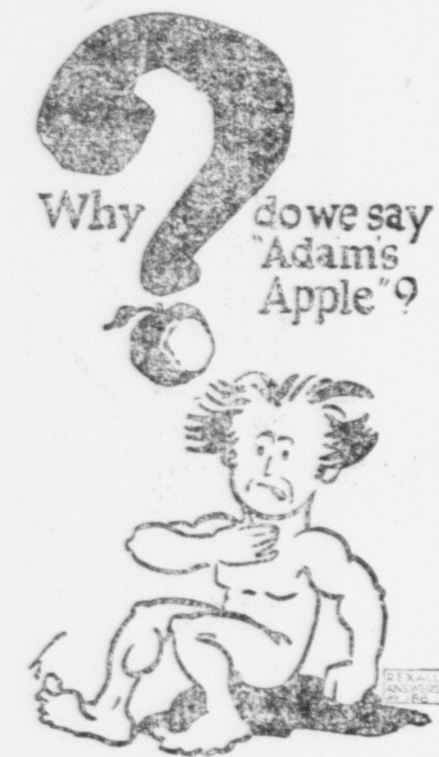

Massena, N. Y.—“I had terrible pains in both my sides and a dragging-down feeling that affected me so that I could hardly walk, and I got run-down. A friend who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advised me to try it and I have taken it with the best results. I do my housework and also some outdoor work on the farm. The Vegetable Compound has given me back my health and I can not praise it enough. I am perfectly willing that you should use these facts if my letter will help other women who still suffer.”—Mrs. DELBERT BUSH, R. F. D. 1, Massena, N. Y.

The spirit of helpfulness shown in the letters we are constantly publishing is worthy of notice.

These women know by experience what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will do. Your troubles are the same as theirs. Isn't it reasonable to expect the same results?

If you have pains and a dragging-down feeling and are nervous and irritable, profit by Mrs. Bush's experience and give the Compound a trial.

APPLE SCAB TO BE MENACE

Cool Rainy Weather Has Given Disease an Excellent Chance

Indianapolis, Ind., May 26—Apple

scab looms as a menace to Indiana's apple crop this season, Frank N.

Wallace, state entomologist, declared today.

“The cool rainy weather of the last few days has given the apple scab an excellent chance,” Wallace said.

“Particular attention must be given to spraying to insure a crop.

Indiana orchardists should concentrate on apples this year, he said, as the peach crop was practically destroyed by the severe cold in January.

Early apples should command a good price, according to Wallace, because of the failure of peaches.

The “Pocket” in southern Indiana is believed to be the only section of the state in which the peach crop was not killed by the cold.

THIS PHOTOGRAPH WAS TELEPHONED

This remarkable example of transmission of a photograph by telephone is one of 15 pictures sent from Cleveland, O., to New York—the first time pictures by wire have been sent with success. Within 45 minutes of the time a photo had been taken in Cleveland it was being exhibited, completely developed, to a group of interested spectators in the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. building, New York City. A new process of transmission by electricity has been perfected, making this possible. The picture here appearing was not retouched, as is customary in the arrangement of most news pictures. An action picture is used to give an idea of how well detail is preserved by this process.

INDIANA CROP REPORT

(U. S. Department of Agriculture, Cooperating with Indiana Legislative Reference Bureau).

Indianapolis, Ind., May 26—The abandonment of wheat acreage in some counties in southern Indiana will run as high as 40 percent due to severe winter-killing, while in most of the northern counties the abandonment is confined principally to low places in fields and is due to ice covering for an extensive period, according to the report of the cooperative crop reporting service, issued today. The total production for this year, as indicated at this time, is approximately 8,285,000 bushels less than estimated for last year. The report follows:

Of the acres seeded to winter wheat in Indiana last fall there will be abandoned 183,000 acres or 9 per cent, according to reports received to

May 1, leaving 1,845,000 acres for harvest, compared with 2,072,000 acres harvested in 1923 and 2,052,

000 acres harvested in 1922. The principal reason for the heavy abandonment is due to winter-killing in the southern part of the state, where the abandonment ran as high as 40 percent in some counties, and where plants were not protected by snow

during the severe weather in January. In the northern part of the state an ice covering of long duration in the late winter did considerable damage to plants in low places. The condition of the crop on May 1, was 78 percent of normal, the same as last year on this date. On this basis a total production of 25,904,900 bushels is indicated at this time. Last year's final estimate for the state amounted to 34,188,000 bushels.

The rye acreage for grain in Indiana this year amounts to 269,000 acres, which is a decrease of 30,000 acres compared with last year. The condition on May 1, was 89 percent of normal and indicates a total production of 3,831,000 bushels, compared with 4,186,000 bushels, the revised estimate of grain harvested last year and 4,200,000 bushels for 1922.

The condition of tame hay in Indiana on May 1, was 83 percent of normal, compared with 74 percent last year. The wild hay condition was 87 percent of normal. Much winter-killing of clover and alfalfa was reported from all sections of the state. There was 12 percent of last

THREATEN EFFECT OF OUR EDUCATION

Foundation of Progress is in Danger of Becoming Over-Standardized, According to a Survey

DESIRABLE IN CLASS ROOMS

Excessive Standardization Very Frequently Results in Destruction of Individualism

Lafayette, Ind., May 26—Education, the foundation of progress, is in danger of becoming over-standardized, according to a survey made by Prof. E. G. Mahin of Purdue University.

“The effectiveness of our present scientific education is threatened due to the over-standardization of modern teaching methods, Prof. Mahin says.

“Standardization is the order of the day, and industry has been greatly improved by it. Waste of materials and efforts have been eliminated to a great extent by the introduction of standardization in the industries.

“Since the standardized methods have been successful in the shops and factories, the same general scheme has been extended to our scientific colleges and universities. Standardization is desirable in the classroom to the extent of establishing a degree of uniformity in the teaching and administration of class work.

But excessive standardization very frequently results in the destruction of individualism in teaching, and the teacher becomes a mere automaton. When a teacher's personality becomes submerged in the conformation of standardized methods in teaching, his usefulness as a teacher disappears.

“It is that touch of personality and individualism that is responsible for the stimulation of interest on the part of the student. Without such interest, his class work soon becomes dull routine and his mental gain is a questionable quantity.

have you fall in love with this university and find its Creator everywhere at work.

"The Students: Who are the students? Yourself. Each with a personality that forever differentiates him from all that have gone before from all that live today and from all that will come after him. The surgeon that went down in the Cumberland could swim out through the hatchway and escape. There is no hatchway, not even that of death, through which you can escape from yourself. The real rewards of life are not the silver and gold laid up in the bank but the wealth of noble character wrought into the fibres of the soul to be yours forever.

"Remember 'wealth and rule slip down with fortune when her wheel turns round.

"He who keeps his faith, he only, cannot be disowned.

"Little were a change of station, loss of life or crown.

"But the wreck may be past, retrieving if the man falls down."

"To each student is given the power of choosing the things that make for littleness or for largeness of life. He may soar with the eagle or wallow with the swine. Often we make unconsciously the choices that limit all our after lives.

Let me illustrate from two people. One coming from a sermon that led you into the very presence of God said, "O how that bored me!" The other coming from a coarse sensual picture show said, "O how that thrilled and delighted me!" Each should change the old prayer book confession of sin and pray, "Forgive me Lord for I have been bored where I ought to have been delighted and I have been tickled to death where I ought to have been bored." Each such choice throws a limiting line around the life and prevents it from going out toward God where He planned that it should go.

"The teachers: Many are the teachers in life's royal university. Our mistakes, our failures, our victories, our defeats, all the manifold experiences of life, are teachers. All things animate and inanimate, all books and pictures, good, bad or indifferent, all the people that we meet wise or otherwise, noble or ignoble, all the customs, traditions, fashions of the past or present, all may be teachers seeking to help or to hinder in the development of the moral and spiritual life. If you really desire the best things in any line, you put yourself under the instruction of the one who is a master in that field of learning. If music you turn to the great musicians, if art to the great artists, if science to the great scientists, if literature to the masters of literature, if it is life that you desire to master, you turn to Him who is the Way, the Truth and the Life. In Him you will find the fulness of all that is lacking in yourself. As the years pass you will find Him growing with your growth, meeting the needs of youth, of manhood, of age and becoming nearer and dearer with every passing year.

"Members of the graduating class of 1924: You have gathered the message of the evening from what has already been said. In Life's Royal University we expect great things of you. We have a right to expect great things from you for to whom much is given of him will much be required. That which you have gained in the public schools from the faithful work of your teachers, from your

RECALLS HOW TOAD RAMSEY BROKE INTO BIG TIME BALL

Louisville Post Describes Advent of Former Famous Rushville Pitcher Into Big Leagues. Will Be Recalled By Many Old Timers Here.

Many of the "old timers" in Rushville will recall Toad Ramsey, famous in his day as a baseball pitcher, who pitched for Rushville and whose fame spread so that eventually he won a berth on the Louisville league team.

In a review of old baseball players the Louisville Post describes as follows how Toad Ramsey broke into "big time" base ball:

Back in the eighties when Bobby Gilks, the present scout of the Yankees, was an ambitious young pitcher working for Chattanooga, he happened to be in Hamilton, Ohio, on a visit. Up at Rushville, Ind., there was a very important game scheduled between two amateur teams.

"Bobby," a baseball man at Hamilton, said to Gilks, "There is a chance for you and your catcher to make $25 apiece. They want a professional battery up at Rushville to trim those fellows. Lots of excitement, and it will be a good laugh."

Gilks and his catcher jumped at the chance and went up to Rushville. They came back silent-like, their tails between their legs. They had been beaten by a big score.

"And the worst of it," explained Gilks, "is that we got just one hit, a freak Texas leaguer, that I hit back of short. They should have had a no-hit game. Seventeen of us struck out!"

"Who was that pitcher?" asked the manager.

"A fellow named Ramsey, a left-hander. And lemme tell you something, you'd better go and get that guy. He's a whiz."

Notwithstanding this tip, nothing was done about it until Gilks became the temporary manager of Chattanooga. He needed a pitcher and wired to Rushville to locate the address of this wonder—didn't even know the first name of the southpaw phenom.

An answer came back that Ramsey lived in Indianapolis, and Gilks wired to the sporting editors of the town. He found that the boy's name was Tom Ramsey and that he would be glad to take a job.

In time Ramsey reported at Chattanooga. He had a peculiar left hand delivery which produced a fast ball and a curve that nobody could hit. The gang had kidded Gilks about this bird striking out seventeen of the amateurs. Just the same he stepped in on Chattanooga and struck out eighteen of the Southern Leaguers his first time out. After that he kept right on, averaging sixteen strikeouts to the game for two years.

After a spell of this Louisville, who already had Kirov, was crazy to get another southpaw. Left-handers were then quite a find. Gilks saw a chance to get some money for his club. After much dickering he sold Ramsey to Louisville for $700, a lot of money in those days.

Ramsey's strikeout stunts had been heard of in Louisville also, causing many snickers. Still, he stepped in against St. Louis, his first game, and struck out twenty. His strikeout stuff kept right up to its average, and in a month Ramsey was considered the most remarkable pitcher of his day. Nobody had been able to solve his change of pace.

For two years or more Ramsey was a hero in Louisville. In time, though, he began to get fat, and from his peculiar lurching position in the box came to be known as "Toad" a nickname that stuck to him to the end of his days.

Ramsey never tried to save his remarkable arm. He put everything he had into every ball he pitched for two or three years. As a result his arm was soon gone and he had to retire at an early age for ball players of that day and time.

Ramsey was extremely modest and sensitive. He never put on the big front and never accepted the hero worship as many big leaguers did.

One night in front of a hotel in Louisville a fan from Boston came along. He was in a good humor and full of talk.

"Fellows," he said to some of the players, "you'd better get ready for a beating tomorrow for we are going to tame some of the conceit out of that Ramsey."

"Toad" overheard this remark and turned white.

"I can lick that fellow," he said. "And if you fellows don't give me a chance I'll never pitch another game. Nobody ever called me conceited before and I can't stand for it."

The Boston fan was finally persuaded to come to Ramsey's room and apologize. Ramsey went on and pitched, and won.

Having nothing of conceit in his makeup the charge of being swell-headed was such an offense to him that it would completely upset him.

There are oldtimers still active in baseball who still insist that "Toad" Ramsey was the greatest left-hander who ever lived. There are others who think he was the greatest of pitchers of all time.

RUSHVILLE SHOWS A GOOD BRAND OF BALL

Defeats Southern Grays of Indianapolis Sunday Afternoon, 6 to 0—Fultz Holds Visitors

COLD HINDERS PLAYERS

The Rushville baseball club displayed a good brand of ball Sunday afternoon, and defeated the Southern Grays of Indianapolis by the score of 6 to 0. The visiting team could not connect safely, and Fultz held them to two hits.

The weather was cold and neither team displayed their best form. Although the game was interesting and fast, the Rushville team got off to a fast start in the first inning, with 4 runs, made on three hits, a hit batsman, an error and a single.

Fultz had the visiting team at his mercy in all parts of the game, and they could not hit safely. The Indianapolis club was a good fielding team. The Real Silk team, which was scheduled to play here last Sunday, will be here next Sunday for a game.

The score by innings:

Baker's Phillies a Disgrace

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, May 26—Personalities were exchanged recently between William F. Baker, owner of the Philadelphia Nationals, and John McGraw, manager and part owner of the New York Giants.

McGraw made some comments about the quality of the Phils which indicated that he believed they were more suited for a Class A league than for a place in the major leagues.

Baker replied that it wasn't his fault that he couldn't get good ball players and keep them after he found them. He said when he did have good players, rich managers got them to lay down so they could be traded away from the club.

Although there is nothing serious in the controversy, it may result in some fireworks, because McGraw hardly will keep his silence when Baker is trying to have it believed that the Giant chief induced Irish Meusel to look bad with the Phils so that he could be brought to New York.

For several years the Phillies have been the joke of the National League and they are a disgrace this year.

Before the season is over the club may decide to give Baker the choice of getting out or of doing something to strengthen a team that, on its present rating now, is not good enough for a fast minor league.

Baker complains that he can't build up the team because he hasn't the money that the Giants, Cubs and Reds have to spend for high-class minor league players and that he couldn't put his hands on the players if he did have the dough to spend.

As long as Baker can live on the patronage that is drawn to his club by games played against good cards like the Giants, Red and Cubs, he will insist that the building up of a club is a hard task, requiring years of vigilance and a lot of baseball luck in developing the talent found.

It is all bosh for any club owner to complain that he can't get players to build up his club.

If any proof had been needed that a little perspiration and a sincere desire to build up a club were all that is needed, Bob Quinn, new boss of the Boston Red Sox furnished it this season.

In a few short months, Quinn took a club that had been wrecked completely by an owner who was in the business only to sell players and transformed it into a club that seemed destined for the first division came to two forks of equal size which outlined a beautiful valley, the site of the present town of Brookville. The charming story of the founding and development of Brookville, of the many men who became prominent as governors, senators, authors and scientists and of their influence upon the intellectual development of Indiana as a state, is told by the late John C. Shirk in a paper published in the Proceedings of the Indiana Academy of Science.

Scores of prominent men and women are referred to as residences of Brookville. Of these a few include: General Lew Wallace, author of Ben Hur; James E. Eads of Mississippi River Jetties fame; Maurice Thompson, author of "Alice of Old Vincennes"; Louisa Chitwood, poetress; John Otis Adams and T. C. Steele; leading artists of the state; and John Herron who gave Indianapolis, the John Herron Art Institute.

TELL STORY OF THE TOWN OF BROOKVILLE

John C. Shirk Describes Development of Town in Paper Published by State Academy of Science

Brookville, Ind., May 26—One hundred and twenty years ago the first white settlers came to the site of what is now Brookville, Indiana, one of the older settlements in the state located sixty-five miles southeast of Indianapolis. The early pioneers who were made up of the sturdiest manhood of the east, followed the course of the Ohio River for their westward journey. Some left the course of the Ohio and traveled up the Big Miami near Cincinnati. Twenty-five miles up the stream they

Lumbago Leaves

Chiropractic Health Talk No. 67
By H. V. McCully, D. C., Ph. C.

Lumbago is a form of rheumatism locally confined to the Lumbar region of the spine, or in plain language—the small of the back. Because of its locality it is sometimes confused with gall stones or rheumatism.

There will be severe pains in the small of the back extending to the hip. Frequently the condition is such that the sufferer is confined to bed. The underlying cause is lack of elimination, due to interrupted transmission of vital energy.

By my Chiropractic Health Method this interference is located and removed. Proper elimination ensues, and when the accumulated poisonous waste has naturally been drained from the system, health follows:

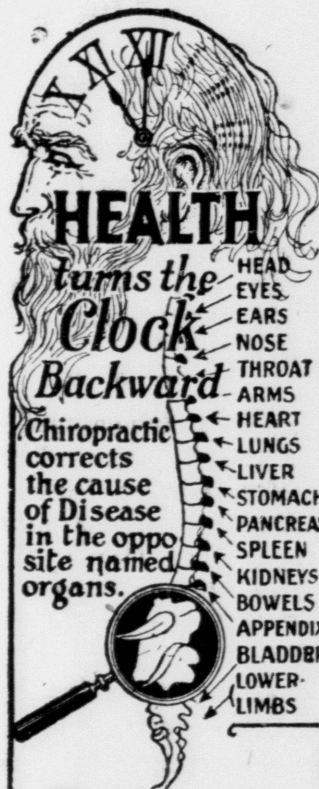

GONE

"After treating me for rheumatism and gall stones my local doctor admitted his failure to diagnose my case properly. I suffered severe pains in the small of my back and right hip joint. Was laid up entirely and in bed for two months. Finally, upon advice of a friend, I tried Chiropractic adjustments. The third adjustment convinced me I was on the right track, and after taking forty adjustments I consider myself cured. Certainly this is a great boon to mankind." — Claude A. Do You Have Pains or Backache?

Read What This Woman Says About It:

South Bend, Ind.—"Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the only medicine I ever found that gave me any relief. I was suffering for some time with inward weakness. Through this I became a nervous wreck and was so weak and 'all in' I could not do my work. I had backaches and pains in my sides. Neither the doctor's medicine nor any other seemed to touch my case or give me any relief. I at last decided to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and from the first it seemed to give me new life. It completely relieved me of my weakness and improved my general health in every way."—Mrs. A. Hapner, 527 E. Monroe St.

For Matinee

This wide white crepe collar redeems what would be a very simple alpaca frock and makes it appropriate for the matinee or afternoon tea as well as for morning. Since both collar and cuffs are detachable they do not detract from the practical use of the garment. The very long tunic and the jet buttons are very up-to-the-minute touches.

WAY OUT OF WAR MUST BE FOUND

for some lay down their lives in the midst of its torment.

"What of the future? Shall we continue this hellishness? Is there no way out? We must find a way out. Three things make it necessary.

"First, we are living in a very small world, after all. The contagion of war can spread too easily. When it breaks out in one part of the world it can spread too rapidly.

"Second, no one is safe any longer in war. Not only is war a contest of armed forces but it is destructive of all life.

"Third, war settles nothing. It merely determines who can hold out longer. It is a test of force. The survival of the fittest.

"We must today, dedicate ourselves to the ideals of righteousness and justice both in our individual lives and our national relationships which shall insure a permanent and lasting peace.

Ascension Sunday

Text: Acts 1:9. "When he had spoken these things, while they beheld, he was taken up; and a cloud received him out of their sight." This was the text of the Rev. Gibson Wilson for his Sunday morning sermon at the First Presbyterian church. He spoke in part as follows:

This day is known in church history as Ascension Sunday. It is fitting that we should study its meaning. Our ascended Lord is becoming the world's leader.

The Old Testament points forward, to some such event as the Ascension. It is not something new that appears on the horizon of the New Testament.

Enoch is a type of Christ's ascension. There is not much said of him except that he was a good man and pleased God. Those who walk with God in this life will not be very far different from Enoch in their going.

Elijah is also a type of Christ's ascension. Like our Lord, he also arose upward, body and was taken from the presence of the people. It is a great lesson on immortality to the Israelites.

The New Testament also points to the ascension. The transfiguration can scarcely be interpreted in any other light, than that he who lived such a marvelous life would be taken back to God. The disciples saw in this Christ's exaltation to his throne.

Soon after the ascension, Peter is preaching "Him hath God exalted to be a Prince and a Savior."

He is a prince in leading the way, in mediating between God and man, in administering the affair of his church from heaven. It was clearly understood that when Jesus left he would send the Holy Spirit. From the historical events that followed we know that the Holy Spirit came. Peter and John were marvelously delivered from jail. The lame man is healed. Ananias and Sapphira could not deceive the early church. The early church was delivered from its most severe persecution by the conversion of its persecutor Paul. The Holy Spirit prepared the way for Cornelius the Gentile to come into the church. The enthroned Christ is guiding his church today. Our Foreign Mission Board has gained the most wonderful victory of its whole history during this past year, wiping out all debts and raising over $5,189,000.

In the third consideration, the Ascension is called for as consequence of the Resurrection.

Jesus had formerly made reference to his going back to his Father. At another time he said, "What and if ye should see the Son of Man ascending up where he was before." The Resurrection in itself stands incomplete. It needs the further purpose as revealed in the Ascension. He goes back to take earth's message to heaven. In the light of his ascending fact do you want that He must have gone into heaven, what more convincing come down from heaven. Why would you throw away the virgin birth and make him an object of shame?

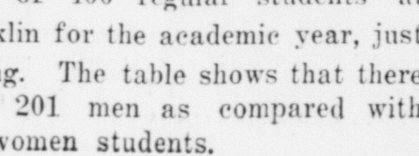

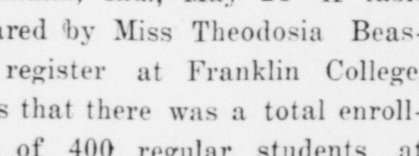

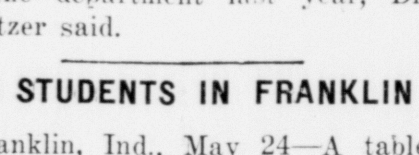

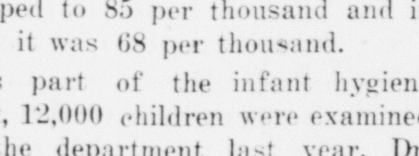

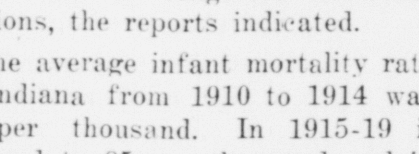

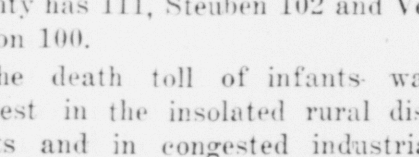

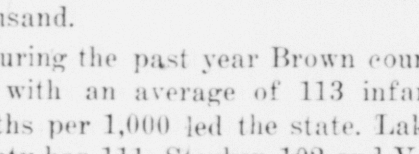

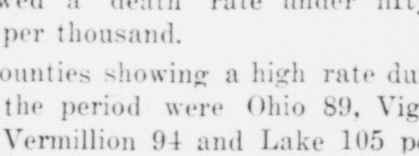

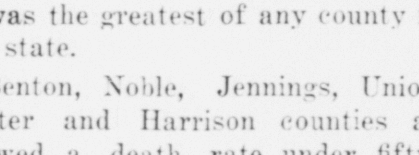

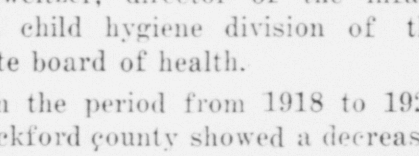

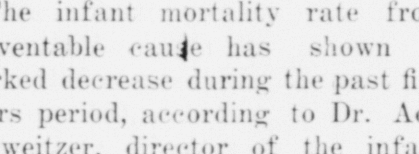

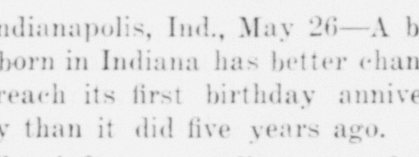

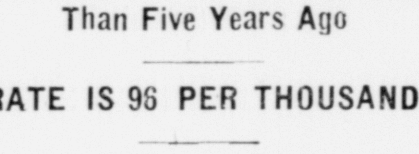

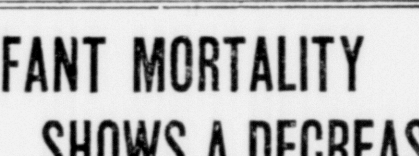

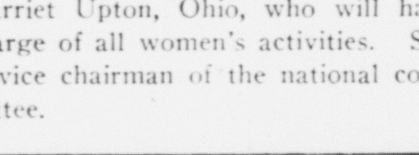

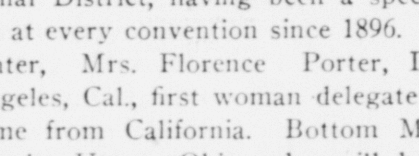

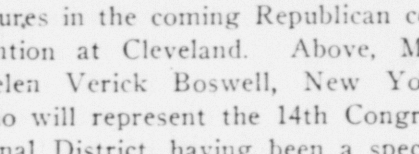

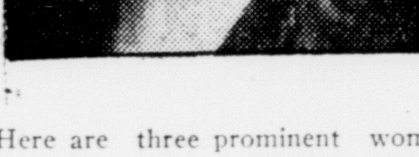

A fourth consideration is that the Ascension testifies to his coming again. This is the testimony of the angels in Acts 1:10. Angels first proclaimed the incarnation. Angels first proclaimed the resurrection. Angels first proclaimed the ascension. Angels announce his second advent.

The very thought of his return calls for fidelity to him and consecration to his cause. It is the testimony of the voice from heaven that he is from heaven. It is also heaven's testimony that He returned to heaven and that He is to come again for His own.

If you are not His, you will miss all that heaven is planning for you. Your influence may also cause some member of your family to miss all of heaven's planning for them. He is coming again.

Rush County Federated Club News

The Department of Thrift is rightly regarded as one of the most important in the Federated work because "the purse strings of the American people are held by the women." It is estimated that 85 percent of the family income is spent by the housewives.

The object of production being consumption, it is obvious that woman holds economic conditions in the hollow of her hand. The hope of this department is to arouse club women—and through their example all women—to an understanding of their important position and of the great need for conservation.

That economy is the keystone of success in character or nation is a lesson yet to be learned by the American people. The potentialities of our country have seemed so inexhaustible that we have been famed and criticized more for wastefulness than forethought.

To remedy this condition by becoming a wise spender is the duty of every club woman. It is necessary not only to curtail private extravagance but to study economic conditions, in order to realize where to help—as for instance, the constant demand for something new in dress fashions is not only a drain on the family purse but an appalling waste of industrial energy. Such waste helps to make the industrial system of the United States scarcely 65 percent efficient.

A demand for greater thought in regard to thrift is bound to have a beneficial effect. It is urged that in the coming year each club allows at least one program for the serious consideration of this subject.

The budget system in the home is especially recommended. Children's allowances in the families of club women are also advised in order to train the child in the wise use of funds.

Material for club programs and for individuals can be had from Miss Elizabeth L. Cowan, State Chairman of Thrift, Fletcher Saving and Trust Company, Indianapolis, or from Mrs. Edith Patterson of Dayton, Ohio, who is General Federation budget specialist.

TO OPEN RILEY HOSPITAL OCT. 7

Executive Committee Has Announced Details of Campaign To Complete Building Fund

NEED $750,000 MORE

Elaborate Plans Made For Formal Opening To Be Participated in by Well Known Men

With building's costing more than one and one-quarter millions of dollars well on the way toward completion, the executive committee in charge of the James Whitcomb Riley Hospital for Children has announced details of its campaign to complete the building fund of $2,000,000 and its determination to rush other needed units of the hospital to a finished state at the earliest possible moment. The Riley Hospital will be open to receive patients about October first, the formal opening of the institution to take place on the birthday anniversary of James Whitcomb Riley, October 7. Elaborate plans for the formal opening are in the making and will be participated in by nationally known educators and by hundreds of well known men and women of Indiana.

The closing stages of the Riley campaign will center around a "subscription bond" issue of $750,000, the amount needed to complete the institution in accordance with the original plans. The bond sale will take place in every community in the state which has not already made pledges to the Riley Hospital. Bonds will be issued in denominations of $10 and upward, on the four year payment plan, or for cash subscriptions, and it is anticipated that the $750,000 necessary to complete the building program will be added to the million dollar fund already available for building purposes.

The "bond" was written by Meredith Nicholson, famous author and essayist and friend of James Whitcomb Riley, for whom the hospital was named. The bond was written around the "fair chance for childhood" idea and is not only an acknowledgment of the subscription to the institution but is a moment from the pen of the famous Indiana author which may be kept a lifetime.

The "bond" bears no interest except, as stated on its face, "that the holder of this instrument is assured of the enlightened and loving care of Indiana Children and their restoration to health where humanly possible, without regard to the ability of their parents or guardians to pay for the service rendered."

WILL CAMPAIGN ON FRONT PORCH

President Coolidge, Like the Late President Harding, Will Use Front Porch in Campaign

NO PLANS DEFINITE YET

So Far The President Has Not Replied to Invitations Concerning Summer Speeches

By LAWRENCE MARTIN
(U. P. Staff Correspondent)

Washington, May 20—President Coolidge, having demonstrated to Washington recently that the front porch of the white house can be used as a porch ordinarily is, intends to conduct his campaign for the presidency from there, just as Mr. Harding conducted his from the porch of his home in Marion.

Mr. Coolidge recently surprised white house attaches by sitting out on the north porch, where nobody ever sits. Heretofore, the president or his family, wishing to relax a moment, have used the more secluded south porch, which looks out over the handsome grounds of the executive mansion, towards the Washington monument.

The president has found the white house very comfortable. Mrs. Coolidge too, likes it. They have decided against a "summer white house" though they could have their pick of half a dozen places in New England or elsewhere. But they will stay right here, using the yacht Mayflower for trips down the Potomac, with possibly an occasional cruise beyond the Virginia capes.

No long campaign trips have been projected for Mr. Coolidge. He probably will make a few trips to deliver speeches, but he wants to do as little of that as possible. The only circumstance likely to change the program would be an obvious unavoidable need for the candidate personally to take charge of his campaign, to swing around the circle and appeal directly to the voters for their support. Even then Mr. Coolidge would leave Washington with reluctance. His political methods depend much more on organization and the tried agencies that have won so many campaigns, rather than on the oratorical appeal of the candidate himself.

Mr. Coolidge is not overly fond of speechmaking. He does not wish to subject himself to the strain of long campaign trips, and it is one of his beliefs that a President, while in office, has no right to absent himself for long periods from his post, even to insure his election.

Many invitations are being received at the white house for speeches this summer. Most of them have received thus far no definite answer. They have been acknowledged, with the assurance that the President will give them his consideration. A little later on, a selection will be made.

THREE UNUSUAL DEATHS

Result From Accidental Ignition of Celluloid Articles

Indianapolis, Ind., May 20—Three unusual deaths, all resulting from the accidental ignition of celluloid toilet articles, have occurred in Indiana in the last several weeks, it is shown by reports to the State Fire Marshal. In every case children were victims. In the most recent case, which occurred at Brazil, a celluloid comb being used to comb a child's hair caught fire and started flames which were fatal to the child.

Fire Marshal Newman T. Miller announced these reports with the admonition to parents to remember that celluloid is highly flammable and should never be used or placed near gas jets, electric heaters, hot pipes or any other such utilities commonly found in homes.

CARS SMASHED IN SUNDAY COLLISION

No One Seriously Injured When Covington, Ky., Automobile Hits Another Broadside

FEW CUT BY BROKEN GLASS

Chris Selke of Newcastle Attempts to Avoid Being Struck at Road Intersection

A five-passenger automobile owned and driven by Chris Selke of Newcastle, was hit broadside in Circleville Sunday afternoon by an automobile driven by E. Smith of Covington, Ky. Both machines were very seriously damaged and had to be dragged into a local garage, but no one was seriously hurt.

A three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Selke was removed to a local hospital where two stitches were taken in a cut on his face, and an older boy suffered a few cuts on his face.

Mrs. Smith suffered severely from the shock and was also badly bruised on the head, and Mr. Cowager, who was riding in Smith's car, was cut on the right side of the face near the eye.

In the Selke machine were Mr. and Mrs. Selke and four children and Mr. Selke's mother. They were returning from Greensburg and their machine had just emerged from the angling road, leading on to state road No. 39, when the automobile driven by Smith, going south at a rapid clip, crashed into it. The left front fender and wheel were bent back against the radiator and the radiator was punctured. Headlights and windshield were broken.

Smith's car appeared to be damaged equally as badly. The right front wheel and fender were mashed down and the crank case was cracked. The radiator was caved in and the front axle bent and twisted. Mr. Selke said that he never saw the other machine coming from the north until he was almost to the turn and then it was too late to stop. Instead of "cutting" the corner, he said he guided his car straight for the right side of the road, making a wide turn.

The Newcastle man asserted that the driver of the other car apparently became confused, and instead of remaining on the right side of the road, swerved to the left, resulting in the collision.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Cowager were returning from Spiceland where they had been visiting relatives.

GOOD CROWD DESPITE INCLEMENT WEATHER

Thirty-Seven Members of Rushville Commandery in Line at Ascension Day Service

SON OF LUTHER BENSON TALKS

Thirty-seven members of Rushville commandery No. 49, Knights Templar, were in line at the annual Ascension Day service at Newcastle Sunday afternoon, despite the inclement weather. The local delegation numbers about fifty-five counting members of families of the Knights attending.

The service was held at the First Christian church and the address was delivered by Sir Knight P. M. Benson, a Newcastle attorney and son of the late Luther Benson, noted temperance advocate of his day and a native of Rush county. Rushville commandery member warmly praised him today for his oratorical ability and the merit which his address had. He is the republican candidate for prosecuting attorney of Henry county.

Special music at the service was provided by the Opello quartet of Newcastle. Other commanderies participating besides Newcastle and Rushville were Greensfield, Knights-town, Richmond, Muncie and Anderson.

YOUTH GETS TERM IN REFORMATORY

Gerald Palmer Admits Robbery of Elsherry Pea Store and is Sentenced for 1 to 8 Years

EXONERATES HIS BROTHER

Paul Palmer is Released and Charge Dismissed—Two Wives Given Allowance in Divorce Case

Gerald Palmer, age 19 years, who was placed in jail last week on a charge of larceny, in connection with the robbery of a store owned by Elsherry Pea in this city, appeared in court late Saturday and changed his plea to that of guilty, and was fined $6 and sentenced to the Indiana Reformatory for a period of time not less than one, nor more than 8 years.

Palmer and his brother, Paul Palmer, were arrested in Anderson last Monday, and returned here for trial. The prisoner pleaded guilty and exonerated his brother, and stated that he had committed the robbery by himself. The charge against the other was dismissed.

The prisoner will be taken Tuesday to the Pendleton institution to begin serving his term.

Judge Sparks allowed the plaintiffs in two divorce cases $7.50 a week support money, during the pendency of their cases. The two cases were filed last week, one by Ella Hittle against Ora Hittle, and the other by Carrie Fleehart against Fred Fleehart. Provisions for the payment of attorney fees also was made by the court, and the defendants in each case were ordered to pay.

A suit set for trial today, of the Olin-Wilmeth Company against the American Security Company, a complaint to replevin was not tried as the defendant this morning filed a motion for a change of venue from the county.

The suit of Valentine Ripberger against Herman Stevens, a complaint on a note demanding $575, was dismissed by the court, as the plaintiff failed to appear to prosecute his action, after the suit had been set for a hearing, and the parties notified.

In the case of the First National Bank of Louisville against Floyd Cox, in which the plaintiff was awarded judgment recently, the defendant has filed a motion for a new trial, but no action was taken on the motion by the court.

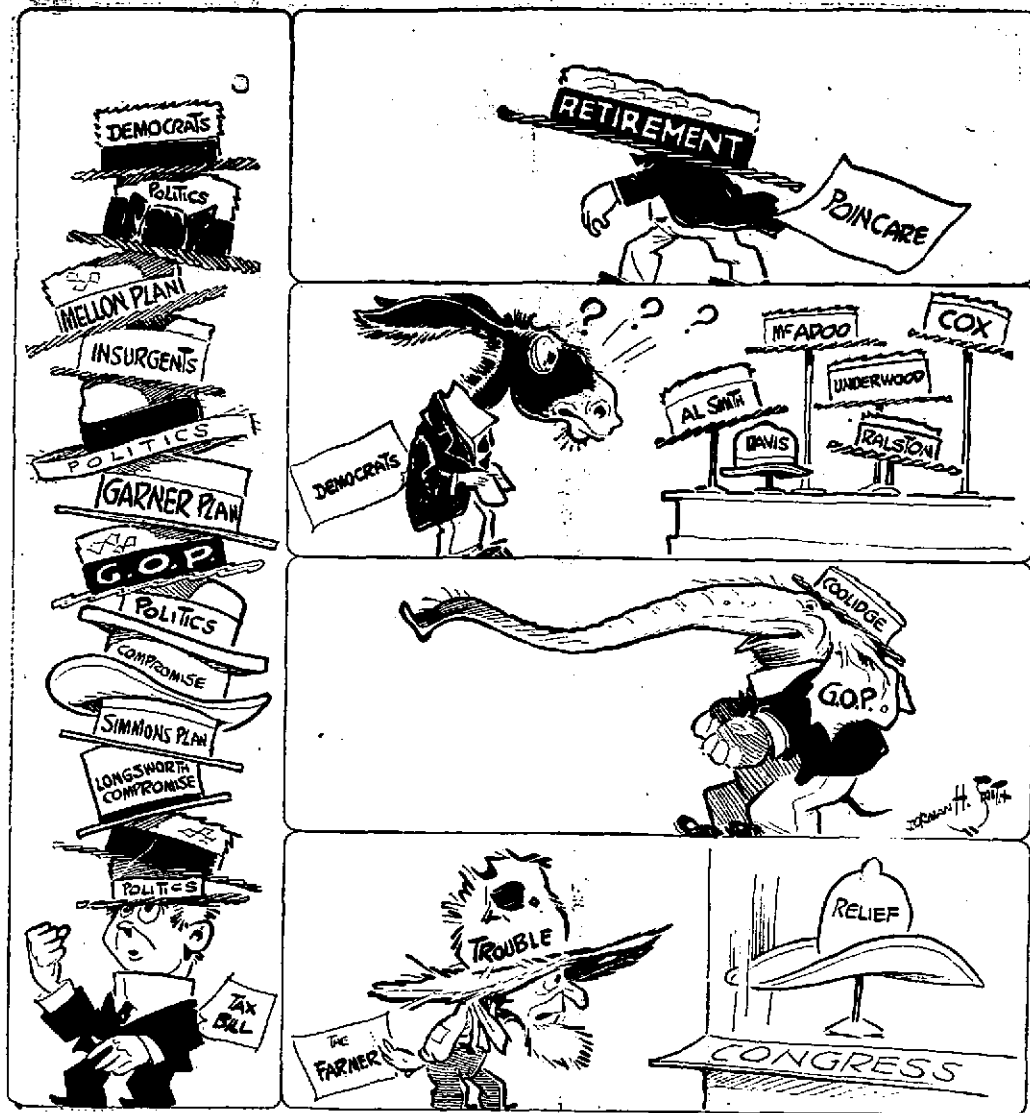

In the complaint of John H. Crenshaw against Harrie Jones, a damage suit asking $20,000 judgment for alleged injuries following an automobile accident, the plaintiff has filed a motion with the court, asking that the action be sent elsewhere for trial.

COMPROMISE TAX BILL IS APPROVED

Passed in House by Overwhelming Vote and Now Goes to the President for His Action

NINE HOLD OUT AGAINST BILL

Measure Provides For a 25 Percent Immediate Reduction in Taxes on 1923 Incomes

(By United Press)
Washington, May 26—The new compromise tax bill today received final congressional approval by the house.

It now goes to the president. Passed by the senate Saturday by a 60 to 6 vote, the house added its overwhelming endorsement to the measure, forecasting success in overriding a veto, if President Coolidge disapproves it.

The technical action came on a vote to accept the report of the conference, who drafted the compromise. The vote was 376 to 9.

The measure provides a 25 percent immediate reduction in taxes payable this year on 1923 incomes.

House factions were more satisfied with the compromise bill than were those in the senate, since the measure as arranged by conference, is, with the exception of the Simmons income tax rates, very similar to the house bill which the senate tore to pieces.

Not even the progressives held out against it in the lower body, because the limited publicity provision which senate progressives opposed, is virtually the same provision house progressives sponsored in the beginning. Democrat regard the whole measure as a Democratic bill. Republicans look on it as the best compromise obtainable and voted for it almost solidly.

House approval completed congressional action on the measure and it will now be sent to the White House. A day, and perhaps two, will elapse after the final vote, however, before it is put in President Coolidge's hands because of the necessary formalities of engrossing it, and having it signed by the presiding officers of both houses.

Fate of the bill at the White House is still doubtful.

PIONEER RESIDENT OF RUSH COUNTY IS DEAD

James Gray, Age 90, Expires Sunday at His Home in Maury Following 12 Days Illness

SPENT LIFE IN ONE TOWNSHIP

James Gray, age 90 years, a pioneer resident of Rush county, and a life long resident of Union township, died Sunday noon, at his home in Maury, death resulting from a twelve days illness with advanced age and complications.

The deceased was born on a farm in Union township on February 5, 1834, and had made his life there, having lately retired and moved to Maury. Mr. Gray had been an active farmer all his life until a few years ago when his eyesight failed, and he was forced to retire.

Mr. Gray's parents came to Indiana from West Virginia in the fall of 1822 and in 1824 bought a farm of 80 acres in Union township for $155, when the county was a wilderness. They had ten children, of whom James was the ninth. He grew to manhood on his father's farm and on December 20, 1857, he was married in marriage to Martha Jane Nichol. Of a family of twelve children, seven survive. Eleven grandchildren and four great grandchildren, also survive.

Besides the seven children, he leaves a widow, and the children are Will H. Gray of Glenwood, Mrs. Gilbert Hannah of Hammond, Andy Gray of Indianapolis, Vincent Gray of this county, Mrs. Hugh Beaver of Fayette county, Cary N. Gray of Acton, and Mrs. O. G. Stevens of Maury.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock at the late residence in Maury, in charge of the Rev. Mr. Hawthorne, and burial will be made in East Hill cemetery Rushville.

STRICKEN BY APOPLEXY

Mrs. Sarah Howe of Indianapolis, daughter of Mrs. Sarah Kinnear of this city and sister of the late Irvin Kinnear, was stricken by apoplexy at the home of her brother, Joseph Kinnear, in Morristown Sunday, and little hope is held out for her recovery. Mrs. Howe is well known here.

FOR APPENDICITIS

Mrs. Earl Kennedy, who resides on a farm northwest of Arlington, underwent an operation at the Dr. Sexton hospital this morning, and her recovery is expected.

COOLIDGE SIGNS IMMIGRATION BILL

President Approves Measure Providing for Exclusion of Japanese Effective July 1

BILL'S OTHER PROVISIONS

After July 1, 1927, Immigration Will Be Limited to 150,000—Restricted to 10 Percent Monthly

By A. L. BRADFORD
(U. P. Staff Correspondent)

Washington, May 26—President Coolidge today signed the immigration bill providing for exclusion of Japanese effective July 1. The bill thus becomes a law.

In addition to the Japanese exclusion clause, the provision of the measure includes:

Quotas of all countries are fixed at 2 per cent basis fixed on the foreign born population in this country according to 1890 census.

After July 1, 1927 immigration will be limited to 150,000, each country getting a quota in this figure according to the national origins of the foreign population in the United States as shown by the 1920 census.

To prevent congestion and other difficulties at American ports, consular offices abroad may not issue visas to more than 10 per cent of a country's quota in any month.

Alien seamen on vessels touching at American ports may not land except for medical treatment.

Wives and children of American citizens and citizens of Canada and all western hemisphere republics are exempted from the quota provision.

Japan, through her envoy here, Ambassador Hanihara, at first protested last winter against the measure acted upon today by the president. Hanihara sent a communication to Secretary of State Hughes protesting against the bill then pending in congress. This letter never was made public, however.

Later Hughes sent a letter to congress, giving the state department's views of different phases of the bill.

The letter contained strong objections to the Japanese exclusion provision, but Hughes' protest was ignored by congress.

When the bill came up for action in congress, the Japanese ambassador sent his famous note warning that enactment of the proposed law would result in "grave consequences" to the relations between the United States and Japan.

Word was received here today of the death of Mrs. Thomas O. Havens, aged 70 years, who died Sunday morning of cerebral hemorrhage, at her home in Greensburg. She was born in Liberty, Ind., February 12, 1854 and was the daughter of William and Margaret Crist. At one time she lived in this city.

The funeral services will be held at the late residence Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and the burial services will also be conducted in a cemetery in that city.

VITAL PART IN LIFE UNIVERSITY

Baccalaureate Speaker Tells Graduates They Have Finished Small Portion of Education

CLASS ATTENDS IN A BODY

All Life is Education, the Rev. H. W. Hargett Says, And None Can Escape It If They Will

"In completing the course of study in the public schools of Rushville you have finished a small but important part of the university of life," said the Rev. H. W. Hargett, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. church, in delivering the baccalaureate sermon to the Rushville high school class. "You began your education there before you were born, and you will continue it long after you have fallen asleep in the arms of mother earth. You cannot escape it if you would. Descend into the depths it is there, ascend into heaven it is there, take the wings of the morning and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea and there education will meet you for all life is education, somehow, somewhere. If you desire earnestly the greatest gifts that life can bring, you will find that they can only be obtained by sitting at the feet of Him, who summed up life's curriculum in three words 'Learn of Me'.

The members of the 1924 graduating class attended in a body and seats were reserved for them in the center of the Main Street Christian church, where union services were held in honor of the class. Members of the faculty and school board were also seated with the class.

Every available seat in the church was occupied and many stood during the address. Rushville pastors were seated on the platform and the Rev. E. G. McKibben of the First United Presbyterian church read the scriptural passages. The opening prayer was made by the Rev. W. K. Sage, pastor of the First Baptist church.

Mrs. C. E. Walden sang a solo and J. H. Schell, superintendent of the schools, introduced the speaker. The Rev. Mr. Hargett's subject was "Life's Royal University" and his text "1st Cor., 12:31—Desire earnestly the greater gifts, and Matt., 11:29—Learn of Me." He continued as follows:

"That we may understand the true meaning of education in a living universe let us consider the university, the students and the teachers.

"The University: It is the oldest of all universities. Yale was founded in 1701, Harvard in 1638, St. Thomas at Manila, the oldest under the American flag, was founded in 1605, San Marco at Lima, Peru, the oldest on American soil, was founded in 1551, Oxford the oldest on English soil is traced by tradition to 872, but our university antedates all of these for Adam began his studies there when God placed him in the garden to till it and to dress it and by developing the garden yet more to develop the man.

"It is royal in its endowment. Back of it is no great millionaire, no wealthy state, but better yet, it is supported by Him who holdeth the wealth of the world in his hands.

"It is royal in its beauty. Its campus is the earth, its canopy the sky frescoed by sentinel stars at night and the drifting clouds by day. Everywhere nature is so thin a screen that the glory of Him 'whose dwelling is the light of setting suns and the round earth and the radiant air' is ever breaking through. I would

Rev. R. W. Sage Gives Three Reasons Why it Must be Eradicated, in Memorial Sunday Sermon

ALL WAR VETERANS ATTEND

First Baptist Pastor Says War is Too Contagious, Makes Life Unsafe and Settles Nothing

The Rev. R. W. Sage, pastor of the First Baptist church, speaking at the Memorial Sunday services at that church Sunday morning, declared three things made it necessary to find a way out of war, after he had spoken eloquently of the meaning of Memorial Day.

War is too contagious, it makes the life of everyone unsafe and settles nothing, he set forth in advocating the eradication of war.

Veterans of all wars marched in a body to the church and attended the services and patriotic organizations were represented in the congregation.

The Rev. Mr. Sage spoke in part as follows:

"Remember the days of old, consider the years of many generations; ask thy father and he will show thee; thine elders and they will tell thee."

These words from the great farewell oration of Moses from our text two things are asked. First, that we call our memory into play over the days that have gone by. But merely to remember is not enough. On the one hand memory may lead us to open again the heart wounds of the past and thereby plunge us into the depths of despair. On the other hand it may lead to a merely sickly sentimentalism which is always despicable. But there is a deeper request. It is that we shall consider. Therefore, for these two reasons, that we may look back over the years and consider well their meaning, not only for us, but for those generations yet unborn, we have come together this morning.

"In the first place, I invite your attention to the fitness of Memorial Day. When this day was instituted it was not merely to add one holiday to the calendar. It was a day sanctified to the memory of those noble sons and daughters who rushed to the defense, you, who gave their lives that the ideals and traditions of this nation should be upheld. Memorial Day is a national necessity. We forget too easily.

"Three major wars have made their impress upon the pages of our history. Only a brief study of them will reveal how quickly we have come from the mountain tops of heroism and sacrifice back to the valley of the commonplace, there to forget many of their most costly sacrifices. Surely then we need this Memorial Day, that by its annual celebration our minds may be refreshed and our hearts renew their determination that these who have given their lives shall not have made their sacrifices in vain.

"But not only is there the fitness of Memorial Day, but there is its tragedy. Why do we have Memorial Day? One word will answer. War. The tragically wrapped up in that one word. Only a glimpse of its heartache, its suffering, its blood and death will be enough to turn our hearts sore and sick. Homes are broken up, loved ones separated and saddest of all the finest of the nation's manhood is called upon to pass through a living hell and worse.

W. R. C. Urges Them to Participate in Decoration Day Ceremony

The members of the organization promise the parents to watch over the children and to bring them to them safe. The children are requested to be at the court house to be ready to start for the cemetery promptly at nine o'clock. The corps will furnish each child with a flag.

MRS. BUSH TELLS OTHER WOMEN

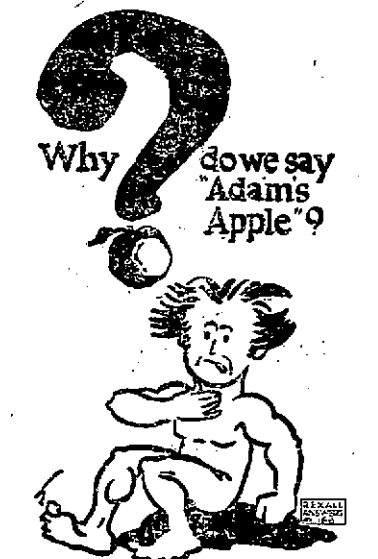

How Pains in Side and Dragging Down Feelings Were Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Massena, N.Y.—“I had terrible pains in both my sides and a dragging-down feeling that affected me so that I could hardly walk, and I got run-down. A friend who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advised me to try it and I have taken it with the best results. I do my housework and also some outdoor work on the farm. The Vegetable Compound has given me back my health and I can not praise it enough. I am perfectly willing that you should use these facts if my letter will help other women who still suffer.”—Mrs. DELBERT BUSH, R. F. D. 1, Massena, N.Y.

The spirit of helpfulness shown in the letters we are constantly publishing is worthy of notice.

These women know by experience what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will do. Your troubles are the same as theirs. Isn't it reasonable to expect the same results?

If you have pains and a dragging-down feeling and are nervous and irritable, profit by Mrs. Bush's experience and give the Compound a trial.

APPLE SCAB TO BE MENACE

Cool Rainy Weather Has Given Disease an Excellent Chance

Indianapolis, Ind., May 26—Apple scab looms as a menace to Indiana's apple crop this season, Frank N. Wallace, state entomologist, declared today.

“The cool rainy weather of the last few days has given the apple scab an excellent chance,” Wallace said. “Particular attention must be given to spraying to insure a crop.”

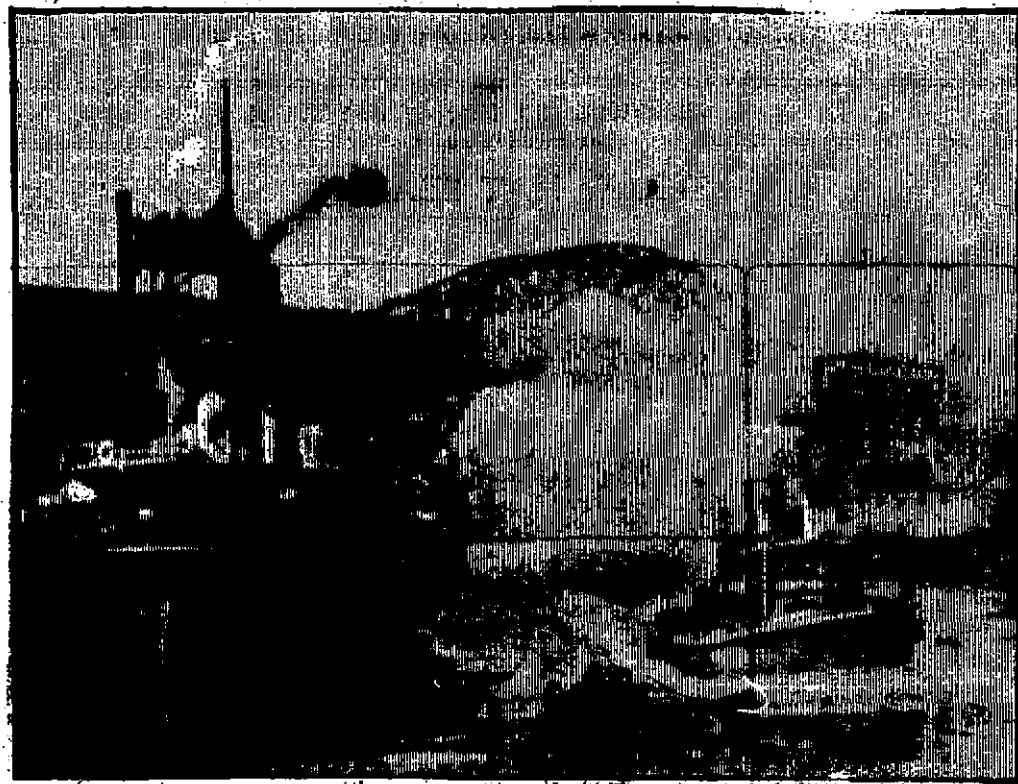

Indiana orchardists should concentrate on apples this year, he said, as the peach crop was practically destroyed by the severe cold in January.

Early apples should command a good price, according to Wallace, because of the failure of peaches.

The “Pocket” in southern Indiana is believed to be the only section of the state in which the peach crop was not killed by the cold.

THIS PHOTOGRAPH WAS TELEPHONED

This remarkable example of transmission of a photograph by telephone is one of 15 pictures sent from Cleveland, O., to New York—the first time pictures by wire have been sent with success. Within 45 minutes of the time a photo had been taken in Cleveland it was being exhibited, completely developed, to a group of interested spectators in the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. building, New York City. A new process of transmission by electricity has been perfected, making this possible. The picture here appearing was not retouched, as is customary in the arrangement of most news pictures. An action picture is used to give an idea of how well detail is preserved by this process.

INDIANA CROP REPORT

(U. S. Department of Agriculture, Cooperating with Indiana Legislative Reference Bureau).

Indianapolis, Ind., May 26—The abandonment of wheat acreage in some counties in southern Indiana will run as high as 40 percent due to severe winter-killing, while in most of the northern counties the abandonment is confined principally to low places in fields and is due to ice covering for an extensive period, according to the report of the cooperative crop reporting service, issued today. The total production for this year, as indicated at this time, is approximately 8,285,000 bushels less than estimated for last year. The report follows:

Of the acres seeded to winter wheat in Indiana last fall there will be abandoned 183,000 acres or 9 percent, according to reports received to May 1, leaving 1,845,000 acres for harvest, compared with 2,072,000 acres harvested in 1923 and 2,052,000 acres harvested in 1922. The principal reason for the heavy abandonment is due to winter-killing in the southern part of the state, where the abandonment ran as high as 40 percent in some counties, and where plants were not protected by snow during the severe weather in January. In the northern part of the state an ice covering of long duration in the late winter did considerable damage to plants in low places. The condition of the crop on May 1, was 78 percent of normal, the same as last year on this date. On this basis a total production of 25,904,000 bushels is indicated at this time. Last year's final estimate for the state amounted to 34,188,000 bushels.

The rye acreage for grain in Indiana this year amounts to 269,000 acres, which is a decrease of 30,000 acres compared with last year. The condition on May 1, was 89 percent of normal and indicates a total production of 3,831,000 bushels, compared with 4,186,000 bushels, the revised estimate of grain harvested last year and 4,200,000 bushels for 1922.

The condition of tame hay in Indiana on May 1, was 83 percent of normal, compared with 74 percent last year. The wild hay condition was 87 percent of normal. Much winter-killing of clover and alfalfa was reported from all sections of the state. There was 12 percent of last year's crop still on farms May 1, and amounts to 332,000 tons, which is about the usual amount for this time of the year.

The season has been unfavorable for preparing fields for spring crops and this work is somewhat behind, however 57 percent of the work had been completed and 47 percent of the planting had been done to May 1. This consists principally of oats and barley, although some truck crops and early potatoes have been planted.

Pastures in Indiana showed a condition of 80 percent of normal on May 1, compared with 68 percent at the same time last year.

The mortality of livestock in Indiana during the year ending April 30 was as follows: Horses and mules from disease 18 per 1,000; cattle, from disease 19 per 1,000 and 6 per 1,000 from exposure; sheep, 30 per 1,000 from disease and 10 per 1,000 from exposure; the loss of lambs from both disease and exposure amounted to 63 per 1,000 and the loss of swine from disease alone amounted to 64 per 1,000. There were no serious outbreaks of disease in any parts of the state during the year and the losses were about average. The general condition of healthfulness of livestock in the state on May 1, was 94 percent of normal for horses and cattle and 93 percent for sheep and swine.

Excessive Standardization Very Frequently Results in Destruction of Individualism

Lafayette, Ind., May 26—Education, the foundation of progress, is in danger of becoming over-standardized, according to a survey made by Prof. E. G. Mahin of Purdue University.

The effectiveness of our present scientific education is threatened due to the over-standardization of modern teaching methods, Prof. Mahin says. “Standardization is the order of the day, and industry has been greatly improved by it. Waste of materials and efforts have been eliminated to a great extent by the introduction of standardization in the industries.

“Since the standardized methods have been successful in the shops and factories, the same general scheme has been extended to our scientific colleges and universities. Standardization is desirable in the classroom to the extent of establishing a degree of uniformity in the teaching and administration of class work.

But excessive standardization very frequently results in the destruction of individualism in teaching, and the teacher becomes a mere automaton. When a teacher's personality becomes submerged in the conformation of standardized methods in teaching, his usefulness as a teacher disappears.

“It is that touch of personality and individualism that is responsible for the stimulation of interest on the part of the student. Without such interest, his class work soon becomes dull routine and his mental gain is a questionable quantity.

have you fall in love with this university and find its Creator everywhere at work.

"The Students: Who are the students? Yourself. Each with a personality that forever differentiates him from all that have gone before from all that live today and from all that will come after him. The surgeon that went down in the Cumberland could swim out through the hatchway and escape. There is no hatchway, not even that of death, through which you can escape from yourself. The real rewards of life are not the silver and gold laid up in the bank but the wealth of noble character wrought into the fibres of the soul to be yours forever.

"Remember 'wealth and rule slip down with fortune when her wheel turns round.

"He who keeps his faith, he only, cannot be disowned.

"Little were a change of station. Loss of life or crown.

"But the wreck may be past, retrieving if the man falls down."

"To each student is given the power of choosing the things that make for littleness or for largeness of life. He may soar with the eagle or wallow with the swine. Often we make unconsciously the choices that limit all our after lives.

Let me illustrate from two people. One coming from a sermon that led you into the very presence of God said, "O how that bored me!" The other coming from a coarse sensual picture show said, "O how that thrilled and delighted me!" Each should change the old prayer book confession of sin and pray, "Forgive me Lord for I have been bored where I ought to have been delighted and I have been tickled to death where I ought to have been bored." Each such choice throws a limiting line around the life and prevents it from going out toward God where He planned that it should go.

"The teachers: Many are the teachers in life's royal university. Our mistakes, our failures, our victories, our defeats, all the manifold experiences of life, are teachers. All things animate and inanimate, all books and pictures, good, bad or indifferent, all the people that we meet wise or otherwise, noble or ignoble, all the customs, traditions, fashions of the past or present, all may be teachers seeking to help or to hinder in the development of the moral and spiritual life. If you really desire the best things in any line, you put yourself under the instruction of the one who is a master in that field of learning. If music you turn to the great musicians, if art to the great artists, if science to the great scientists, if literature to the masters of literature, if it is life that you desire to master, you turn to Him who is the Way, the Truth and the Life. In Him you will find the fulness of all that is lacking in yourself. As the years pass you will find Him growing with your growth, meeting the needs of youth, of manhood, of age and becoming nearer and dearer with every passing year.

"Members of the graduating class of 1924: You have gathered the message of the evening from what has already been said. In Life's Royal University we expect great things of you. We have a right to expect great things from you for to whom much is given of him will much be required. That which you have gained in the public schools from the faithful work of your teachers, from your

Have the mind of Christ—Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus. Let nothing be done through strife or vain glory; but in lowliness of mind let each esteem other better than themselves. Philippians 2:5, 6.

Prayer—O Master, so discipline us that we may think thy thoughts with thee.

The Bossert Fiasco

Friends of Senator Watson local-ly, who have taken any part in politics in the past, well know that the sudden affection displayed by Walter Bossert of Liberty, for Senator Watson, in attempting to promote his supposed candidacy for the vice-presidential nomination, is not inspired by any desire to be of service to the senator, but is aimed to injure him.

Those well informed in sixth district political affairs are familiar with Bossert's antagonism for Senator Watson and plainly see the political coup that Bossert is attempting. It is evident that Bossert is not alone in the enterprise, but that he is being directed by enemies of the senior Indiana senator within his own party.

At the organization of the sixth district committee week before last in Newcastle, Bossert was present and did everything within his power to prevent the election of George Elliott, who was Senator Watson's choice for district chairman, even going so far as to contest the proxy given by Glen Miller, republican county chairman, but the contest was lost when taken before the state committee and Mr. Elliott was elected.

Bossert's opposition to Senator Watson is proverbial. Since becoming a figure in sixth district politics ten years ago, Bossert has always been regarded as an enemy of the Indiana senator, because he owes whatever political influence he may possess to men within the republican party who are unfriendly to Senator Watson.

Therefore, those who have seen Bossert's rise from an obscure literary lawyer to a place of supposed political power, have to smile when they read of Bossert's pronouncements in regard to promotion of Senator Watson's candidacy for the republican nomination for vice-president.

Senator Watson's friends here are not at all doubtful about the outcome, because they do not believe that Senator Watson's prestige will suffer any though Bossert may attempt to embarrass him.

Hunt's Washington Letter

BY HARRY B. HUNT

NEA Service Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—After the twentieth, or the thirtieth, or the fortieth ballot, when the Al Smith boosters have lost their voices and the McAdoo boosters have boomed in vain, when the Underwood, Davis and Ralston backers have failed to effect compromises and trades sufficient to round up the two-thirds vote necessary for nomination at the Democratic national convention, then—

When the deadlock is tightest, weariness the heaviest and gloom and grouches are enfolding the jaded delegations—

Then will be the time to trot out the spirited, high-stepping, hitherto unrevealed "dark horse" whose popularity and party appeal will sweep away all smoldering inter-party animosities and give the convention a candidate guaranteed to be a winner at the polls on Nov. 4, 1924.

SCOUTS for possible dark horse entries for the Democratic nomination invariably of late have paused long and thoughtfully before the stall of a long-legged, rangy steed from the grassy mountain slopes of Tennessee.

Critical examination to date has failed to show any defects in wind, limb or heart. Not a showy steed, perhaps, but a spirited, clean-lined, dependable one, with stamina and sticking qualities that promise well. A steed that has not run amuck on the range, has engendered no animosities among the herd and would draw no kicks and bitings from his fellows.

In other words, observe as one of the likeliest of the "dark horse" brigade, the Honorable Cordell Hull, member of Congress from the Fourth Tennessee District, chairman of the Democratic National Committee and distinctly among the presidential possibilities on the Democratic ticket.

HULL is the man whom Democrats have to thank today for a well-groomed, smoothly operating organization.

the technical knowledge he could for the job that lay ahead.

An eclipse such as the one of last year takes place only every 120 years. He realized that it was his one big chance; that he would never have another one like it. So he prepared.

An eclipse such as the one of last year takes place only every 120 years. He realized that it was his one big chance; that he would never have another one like it. So he prepared.

There is a lesson in this example for all of us. He demonstrated what everyone knows, but too little appreciates, that nothing worth while comes to us except through honest effort; and that to attain a goal, it is necessary to make preparation commensurate with the task.

A total eclipse of the sun is visible on the earth every 120 years, but our span of years here is much shorter than that.

When we set out upon our life's work, little realizing what a comparatively short time we are to be here, how many of us decide what our aim in life shall be, and then set about as thoroughly to reach it as this newspaper reporter did in the accomplishment of his task?

Very few ever pay any attention to the experiences of those who have trod the same path—the technical knowledge required to make a success of life. Most of us plunge heedlessly and thoughtlessly into the great experience, never knowing the pain, the sorrow and the heartaches that it holds for us.

If those on the threshold would only tarry for a few minutes at the feet of experience and wisdom and learn what lies before them, how much more wonderful this world would be.

But youth seldom does and so often learns its lesson at great cost.

When he took office as Democratic chairman in 1921, the party seemed hopelessly wrecked and hopelessly in debt.

Today, due directly to his unflagging zeal and energy, it is in better position materially and mentally than since the Civil War. He has wiped out its debt, imbued Democrats with the spirit and will to win, and has inspired the enthusiasm that leads members of the party to feel—even with the identity of the party's candidate in doubt—that this is a "Democratic year."

WHEN Hull took hold of the Democratic helm, the party had 14 governors in office against 34 Republicans.

Today, 27 Democratic governors are in office and only 21 Republicans.

Then there were but 37 Democratic senators; now there are 43. Then there were 131 Democratic members in the House against the present membership of 206 and a confidently hoped-for majority next year.

IN all of those results, Hull's backers, maintain he has had a most important part.

He has established close and harmonious contact with leaders of Democratic thought in every state and district.

Through his "Victory Clubs" he has given a sense of intimate participation in Democratic affairs to many thousands of the rank and file. For the past two years Hull has averaged between 1500 to 2000 personal letters per week to party workers and leaders, advising, counseling, urging them up and on.

The result: A maximum of enthusiastic, loyal friends. No active enemies.

SUCH is the footing on which the grooming of Hull as a "dark horse" is based. He is, friends contend, one of the few leaders on whom all rival groups could compromise without a sense of surrender.

If it is to be a "dark horse," they warn, look out for Hull.

Look for him anyway!

Mrs. Maud Dill of Grant county is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Ota Newhouse at Mays.

Miss Cora Newhouse has returned to Marion to resume her duties in the hospital there after a visit with her folks at Mays.

Mrs. E. I. Wooden is ill at her home in North Morgan street with an attack of acute indigestion.

Lieut. Gov. Hall is rapidly regaining his health during his visit in the country and expects to be back in his office tomorrow.

It was currently reported around the city today that Harry Ford, the machine operator at the Vaudeville theatre, was married today.

The membership list of the new Country club is fast increasing. Work is progressing on the new club house so that it will be completed within the next few weeks.

The Chautauqua soliciting committee started out this morning to see how the business men would take hold of the proposition in the new form. The party consisted of Messrs. Giffin, headless, Randall and Shaw. This afternoon Martin, Shaw and Scholl were working. There was a hearty response and already a liberal subscription of stock has been made. If the rest comes as well as the first approached, success awaits the movement.

A number of people from this city will attend the Epworth League convention to be held in Milton, June 8th and 9th.

Carmelita Geraghty, who with Gloria Grey is featured in the romantic comedy, "Bag and Baggage," coming to the Castle today for a two days run, is the daughter of Tom J. Geraghty of Hollywood, formerly editor of the Daily Republican and himself famous as a scenario writer and supervising director of pictures.

Miss Geraghty, who is a picturesque brunette and a couple of years under twenty, preferred to make her own way rather than rely on the prestige of being her father's daughter, so she remained alone in Hollywood and went from studio to studio seeking employment. As she is a born Thespian as well as a type which is easily utilized in the pictures, she had no trouble in securing an engagement and now her services are in continual demand.

In "Bag and Baggage" Miss Geraghty has the role of Lola Cooper, whose scheming mother is endeavoring to push her into a lucrative marriage. It is a difficult part and it is said that Miss Geraghty acquires herself admirably.

"The King of Wild Horses"

An actor never before seen on stage or screen and without previous experience is said to walk off with all acting honors in "The King of Wild Horses," Hal Roach's unique and sensation feature drama showing today and Tuesday at the Princess theatre.

This actor is Rex, a registered Morgan stallion who, but a few weeks before Fred Jackson started direction of the picture, was as wild and dangerous as a man-eating tiger. Rex proved to be a born actor. He has personality—fiery spirit that the camera caught. He worked through scenes in a maze of mountain caverns and walked narrow ledges where one false step meant death hundreds of feet below. For the climax of the drama he went through a genuine forest fire that singed his flowing mane and tail.

Edna Murphy, Leon Barry, Charles Parrott, Pat Hartigan and Sidney De Grey comprise the cast in support of Rex in "The King of Wild Horses" which was written by Hal Roach.

RECALLS HOW TOAD RAMSEY
BROKE INTO BIG TIME BALL

Louisville Post Describes Advent of Former Famous Rushville Pitcher Into Big Leagues. Will Be Recalled By Many Old Timers Here.

Many of the "old timers" in Rushville will recall Toad Ramsey, famous in his day as a baseball pitcher, who pitched for Nashville and whose fame spread so that eventually he won a berth on the Louisville league team.

In a review of old baseball players the Louisville Post describes as follows how Toad Ramsey broke into "big time" base ball:

Back in the eighties when Bobby Gilks, the present scout of the Yankees, was an ambitious young pitcher working for Chattanooga, he happened to be in Hamilton, Ohio, on a visit. Up at Rushville, Ind., there was a very important game scheduled between two amateur teams.

"Bobby," a baseball man at Hamilton, said to Gilks, "There is a chance for you and your catcher to make $25 apiece. They want a professional battery up at Rushville to trim those fellows. Lots of excitement, and it will be a good laugh."

Gilks and his catcher jumped at the chance and went up to Rushville. They came back silent-like, their tails between their legs. They had been beaten by a big score.

"And the worst of it," explained Gilks, "is that we got just one hit, a freak Texas leaguer, that I hit back of short. They should have had a no-hit game. Seventeen of us struck out!"

"Who was that pitcher?" asked the manager.

"A fellow named Ramsey, a left-hander. And I mean tell you something, you'd better go and get that guy. He's a whiz."

Notwithstanding this tip, nothing was done about it until Gilks became the temporary manager of Chattanooga. He needed a pitcher and wired to Rushville to locate the address of this wonder—didn't even know the first name of the southpaw phenom.

An answer came back that Ramsey lived in Indianapolis, and Gilks wired to the sporting editors of the town. He found that the boy's name was Tom Ramsey and that he would be glad to take a job.

In time Ramsey reported at Chattanooga. He had a peculiar left hand delivery which produced a fast ball and a curve that nobody could hit. The gang had kidded Gilks about this bird striking out seventeen of the amateurs. Just the same he stepped in on Chattanooga and struck out eighteen of the Southern Leaguers his first time out. After that he kept right on, averaging sixteen strikeouts to the game for two years.

After a spell of this Louisville, who already had Kilroy, was crazy to get another southpaw. Left-handers were then quite a find. Gilks saw a chance to get some money for his club. After much dickering he sold Ramsey to Louisville for $700, a lot of money in those days.

Ramsey's knockout stunts had been heard of in Louisville also, causing many snicker. Still, he stepped in against St. Louis, his first game, and struck out twenty. His knockout stuff kept right up to its average, and in a month Ramsey was considered the most remarkable pitcher of his day. Nobody had been able to solve his change of pace.

For two years or more Ramsey was a hero in Louisville. In time, though, he began to get fat, and from his peculiar lurching position in the box came to be known as "Toad" a nickname that stuck to him to the end of his days.

Ramsey never tried to save his remarkable arm. He put everything he had into every ball he pitched for two or three years. As a result his arm was soon gone and he had to retire at an early age for ball players of that day and time.

Ramsey was extremely modest and sensitive. He never put on the big front and never accepted the hero worship as many big leaguers did.

One night in front of a hotel in Louisville a fan from Boston came along. He was in a good humor and full of talk.

"Fellows," he said to some of the players, "you'd better get ready for a beating tomorrow for we are going to tame some of the conceit out of that Ramsey."

"Toad" overheard this remark and turned white.

"I can lick that fellow," he said. "And if you fellows don't give me a chance I'll never pitch another game. Nobody ever called me conceited before and I can't stand for it."

The Boston fan was finally persuaded to come to Ramsey's room and apologize. Ramsey went on and pitched, and won.

Having nothing of conceit in his makeup the charge of being swell-headed was such an offense to him that it would completely upset him.

There are oldtimers still active in baseball who still insist that "Toad" Ramsey was the greatest left-hander who ever lived. There are others who think he was the greatest of pitchers of all time.

RUSHVILLE SHOWS A GOOD BRAND OF BALL

Defeats Southern Grays of Indianapolis Sunday Afternoon. 6 to 0—Fultz Holds Visitors

COLD HINDERS PLAYERS

The Rushville baseball club displayed a good brand of ball Sunday afternoon, and defeated the Southern Grays of Indianapolis by the score of 6 to 0. The visiting team could not connect safely, and Fultz held them to two hits.

The weather was cold and neither team displayed their best form, although the game was interesting and fast. The Rushville team got off to a fast start in the first inning, with 3 runs, made on three bunts, a hit batsman, an error and a single.

Fultz had the visiting team at his mercy in all parts of the game, and they could not hit safely. The Indianapolis club was a good fielding team. The Real Silk team, which was scheduled to play here last Sunday, will be here next Sunday for a game.

The score by innings:
Rushville — 6 0 0 0 0 6

Evansville—John O. Chewing, principal of Central high school, will succeed L. P. Benzet as superintendent of schools. Benzet goes to Manchester, N. H.

GET AT THE CAUSE

Many Rushville Folks Are Showing
How to Avoid Needless Suffering

There's nothing more annoying than kidney weakness or inability to properly control the kidney secretions night and day alike, the sufferer is tormented and what with the burning and scalding, the attendant backache, headache and dizziness, life is indeed a burden. Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys—have brought peace and comfort to many Rushville people. Profit by this Rushville resident's experience.

Mrs. Lizzie Boren, 819 W. Ninth St., says: "My kidneys acted too frequently and I suffered with terrible pains. The doctor said it was gravel. He didn't help me any and I kept passing stones. I got Doan's Pills at Wolcott's Drug Store, and a short use banished the pain."

MORE THAN FIVE YEARS LATER, Mrs. Boren said: "I use Doan's occasionally and they always relieve the trouble."

Baker's Phillies a Disgrace

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, May 26—Personalities were exchanged recently between William F. Baker, owner of the Philadelphia Nationals, and John McGraw, manager and part owner of the New York Giants.

McGraw made some comments about the quality of the Phils which indicated that he believed they were more suited for a Class A league than for a place in the major leagues.

Baker replied that it wasn't his fault that he couldn't get good ball players and keep them after he found them. He said when he did have good players, rich managers got them to lay down so they could be traded away from the club.

Although there is nothing serious in the controversy, it may result in some fireworks, because McGraw hardly will keep his silence when Baker is trying to have it believed that the Giant chief induced Irish Mousel to look bad with the Phils so that he could be brought to New York.

For several years the Phillies have been the joke of the National League and they are a disgrace this year.

Before the season is over the club may decide to give Baker the choice of getting out or of doing something to strengthen a team that, on its present rating now, is not good enough for a fast minor league.

Baker complains that he can't build up the team because he hasn't the money that the Giants, Cubs and Reds have to spend for high-class minor league players and that he couldn't put his hands on the players if he did have the dough to spend.

As long as Baker can live on the patronage that is drawn to his club by games played against good cards like the Giants, Red and Cubs, he will insist that the building up of a club is a hard task, requiring years of vigilance and a lot of baseball luck in developing the talent found.

It is all bosh for any club owner to complain that he can't get players to build up his club.

If any proof had been needed that a little perspiration and a sincere desire to build up a club were all that is needed, Bob Quinn, new boss of the Boston Red Sox, furnished it this season.

In a few short months, Quinn took a club that had been wrecked completely by an owner who was in the business only to sell players and he transformed it into a club that seemed destined for the first division

TELL STORY OF THE TOWN OF BROOKVILLEJohn C. Shirk Describes Development of Town in Paper Published by State Academy of Science

Brookville, Ind., May 26—One hundred and twenty years ago the first white settlers came to the site of what is now Brookville, Indiana, one of the older settlements in the state located sixty-five miles south-east of Indianapolis. The early pioneers who were made up of the sturdiest manhood of the east, followed the course of the Ohio River of their westward journey. Some left the course of the Ohio and traveled up the Big Miami near Cincinnati. Twenty-five miles up the stream they came to two forks of equal size which outlined a beautiful valley, the site of the present town of Brookville.

The charming story of the founding and development of Brookville, of the many men who became prominent as governors, senators, authors and scientists and of their influence upon the intellectual development of Indiana as a state, is told by the late John C. Shirk in a paper published in the Proceedings of the Indiana Academy of Science.

Scores of prominent men and women are referred to as residences of Brookville. Of these a few include, General Lew Wallace, author of Ben Hur; James E. Eads of Mississippi River Jetties fame; Maurice Thompson, author of "Alice of Old Vincennes"; Louisa Chitwood, poetess; John Otis Adams and T. C. Steele; leading artists of the state; and John Herron who gave Indianapolis, the John Herron Art Institute.

Lumbago
LeavesChiropractic Health Talk No. 67
By H. V. McCully, D. C., Ph. C.

Lumbago is a form of rheumatism locally confined to the Lumbar region of the spine, or in plain language—the small of the back. Because of its locality it is sometimes confused with gall stones or rheumatism.

There will be severe pains in the small of the back extending to the hip. Frequently the condition is such that the sufferer is confined to bed. The underlying cause is lack of elimination, due to interrupted transmission of vital energy.

By my Chiropractic Health Method this interference is located and removed. Proper elimination ensues, and when the accumulated poisonous waste has naturally been drained from the system, health follows:

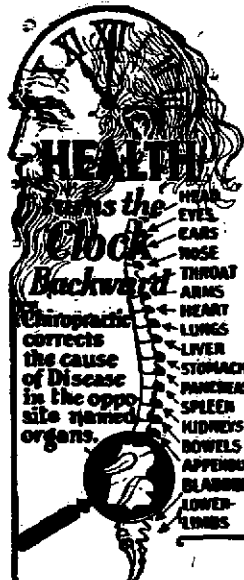

GONE

"After treating me for rheumatism and gall stones my local doctor admitted his failure to diagnose my case properly. I suffered severe pains in the small of my back and right hip joint. Was laid up entirely and in bed for two months. Finally, upon advice of a friend, I tried Chiropractic adjustments. The third adjustment convinced me I was on the right track, and after taking forty adjustments I consider myself cured. Certainly this is a great boon to mankind." — Claude A. WAY OUT OF WAR MUST BE FOUND for some lay down their lives in the midst of its torment.

"What of the future? Shall we continue this hellishness? Is there no way out? We must find a way out. Three things make it necessary.

"First, we are living in a very small world, after all. The contagion of war can spread too easily. When it breaks out in one part of the world it can spread too rapidly.

"Second, no one is safe any longer in war. Not only is war a contest of armed forces but it is destructive of all life.

"Third, war settles nothing. It merely determines who can hold out longer. It is a test of force. The survival of the fittest.

"We must today, dedicate ourselves to the ideals of righteousness and justice both in our individual lives and our national relationships which shall insure a permanent and lasting peace.

Ascension Sunday

Text: Acts 1:9. "When he had spoken these things, while they beheld, he was taken up; and a cloud received him out of their sight." This was the text of the Rev. Gibson Wilson for his Sunday morning sermon at the First Presbyterian church. He spoke in part as follows:

This day is known in church history as Ascension Sunday. It is fitting that we should study its meaning. Our ascended Lord is becoming the world's leader.

The Old Testament points forward to some such an event as the Ascension. It is not something new that appears on the horizon of the New Testament.

Enoch is a type of Christ's ascension. There is not much said of him except that he was a good man and pleased God. Those who walk with God in this life will not be very far different from Enoch in their going.

Elijah is also a type of Christ's ascension. Like our Lord, he also arose upward, bodily and was taken from the presence of the people. It is a great lesson on immortality to the Israelites.

The New Testament also points to the ascension. The transfiguration can scarcely be interpreted in any other light, than that he who lived such a marvelous life would be taken back to God. The disciples saw in this Christ's exaltation to his throne. Soon after the ascension, Peter is preaching "Thine hath God exalted to be a Prince and a Savior."

He is a prince in leading the way, in mediating between God and man, in administering the affair of his church from heaven. It was clearly understood that when Jesus left he would send the Holy Spirit. From the historical events that followed we know that the Holy Spirit came. Peter and John were marvelously delivered from jail. The lame man is healed. Ananias and Sapphira could not deceive the early church. The early church was delivered from its most severe persecution by the conversion of its persecutor Paul. The Holy Spirit prepared the way for Cornelius the Gentile to come into the church. The enthroned Christ is guiding his church today. Our Foreign Mission Board has gained the most wonderful victory of its whole history during this past year, wiping out all debts and raising over $5,189,070.

In the third consideration, the Ascension is called for as consequence of the Resurrection.

Jesus had formerly made reference to his going back to his Father. At another time he said, "What and if ye should see the Son of Man ascending up where he was before." The Resurrection in itself stands incomplete. It needs the further purpose as revealed in the Ascension. He goes back to take earth's message to heaven. In the light of his ascending fact do you want that He must have into heaven, what more convincing come down from heaven. Why would you throw away the virgin birth and make him an object of shame?

A fourth consideration is that the Ascension testifies to his coming again. This is the testimony of the angels in Acts 1:10. Angels first proclaimed the incarnation. Angels first announced the resurrection. Angels first proclaimed the ascension. Angels first proclaim his second advent.

The very thought of his return calls for fidelity to him and consecration to his cause. It is the testimony of the voice from heaven that he is from heaven. It is also heaven's testimony that He returned to heaven and that He is to come again for His own.

If you are not His, you will miss all that heaven is planning for you. Your influence may also cause some member of your family to miss all of heaven's planning for them. He is coming again.

INFANT MORTALITY SHOWS A DECREASE

Baby Born in Indiana Has Better Chance to Reach First Birthday Than Five Years Ago

RATE IS 96 PER THOUSAND

Indianapolis, Ind., May 26—A baby born in Indiana has better chance to reach its first birthday anniversary than it did five years ago.

The infant mortality rate from preventable cause has shown a marked decrease during the past five years period, according to Dr. Ada Schweitzer, director of the infant and child hygiene division of the State board of health.

In the period from 1918 to 1923 Blackford county showed a decrease. It was the greatest of any county in the state.

Benton, Noble, Jennings, Union, Porter and Harrison counties all showed a death rate under fifty-five per thousand.

Counties showing a high rate during the period were Ohio 89, Vigo, 89, Vermillion 94 and Lake 105 per thousand.

During the past year Brown county, with an average of 113 infant deaths per 1,000 led the state. Lake county has 111, Steuben 102 and Vermillion 100.

The death toll of infants was highest in the isolated rural districts and in congested industrial sections, the reports indicated.

The average infant mortality rate in Indiana from 1910 to 1914 was 96 per thousand. In 1915-19 it dropped to 85 per thousand and in 1922 it was 68 per thousand.

As part of the infant hygiene work, 12,000 children were examined by the department last year, Dr. Schweitzer said.

Rush County Federated Club News

The Department of Thrift is rightly regarded as one of the most important in the Federated work because "the purse strings of the American people are held by the women." It is estimated that 85 percent of the family income is spent by the housewives.

The object of production being consumption, it is obvious that woman holds economic conditions in the hollow of her hand. The hope of this department is to arouse club women—and through their example all women—to an understanding of their important position and of the great need for conservation.

That economy is the keystone of success in character or nation is a lesson yet to be learned by the American people. The potentialities of our country have seemed so inexhaustible that we have been famed and criticized more for wastefulness than for thought.

To remedy this condition by becoming a wise spender is the duty of every club woman. It is necessary not only to curtail private extravagance but to study economic conditions, in order to realize where to help—as for instance, the constant demand for something new in dress fashions is not only a drain on the family purse but an appalling waste of industrial energy. Such waste helps to make the industrial system of the United States scarcely 65 percent efficient.

A demand for greater thought in regard to thrift is bound to have a beneficial effect. It is urged that in the coming year each club allows at least one program for the serious consideration of this subject.

The budget system in the home is especially recommended. Children's allowances in the families of club women are also advised in order to train the child in the wise use of funds.

Material for club programs and for individuals can be had from Miss Elizabeth L. Cowan, State Chairman of Thrift, Fletcher Saving and Trust Company, Indianapolis, or from Mrs. Edith Patterson of Dayton, Ohio, who is General Federation budget specialist.

RUSH POST NO. 150

THE AMERICAN LEGION

TO OPEN RILEY HOSPITAL OCT. 7

Executive Committee Has Announced Details of Campaign To Complete Building Fund

NEED $750,000 MORE

Elaborate Plans Made For Formal Opening To be Participated in by Well Known Men

With building's costing more than one and one-quarter millions of dollars well on the way toward completion, the executive committee in charge of the James Whitcomb Riley Hospital for Children has announced details of its campaign to complete the building fund of $2,000,000 and its determination to rush other needed units of the hospital to a finished state at the earliest possible moment. The Riley Hospital will be open to receive patients about October first, the formal opening of the institution to take place on the birthday anniversary of James Whitcomb Riley, October 7. Elaborate plans for the formal opening are in the making and will be participated in by nationally known educators and by hundreds of well known men and women of Indiana.

The closing stages of the Riley campaign will center around a "subscription bond" issue of $750,000, the amount needed to complete the institution in accordance with the original plans. The bond sale will take place in every community in the state which has not already made pledges to the Riley Hospital. Bonds will be issued in denominations of $10 and upward, on the four year payment plan, or for cash subscriptions, and it is anticipated that the $750,000 necessary to complete the building program will be added to the million dollar fund already available for building purposes.

The "bond" was written by Meredith Nicholson, famous author and essayist and friend of James Whitcomb Riley, for whom the hospital was named. The bond was written around the "fair chance for childhood" idea and is not only an acknowledgment of the subscription to the institution but is a memento from the pen of the famous Indiana author which may be kept a lifetime.

The "bond" bears no interest except, as stated on its face, "that the holder of this instrument is assured of the enlightened and loving care of Indiana Children and their restoration to health where humanly possible, without regard to the ability of their parents or guardians to pay for the service rendered."

A number of organizations in various communities of the state have already undertaken the sale of bonds and others are calling upon the Riley headquarters in Indianapolis for information. The plan of sale is simple. Bonds are placed in the hands of members of any organization. Members sell the bonds on a certain "bond sale day" in any community or in other ways devised by them. Cash subscriptions or pledges are taken in return for the bonds. The amounts thus obtained are credited two ways on the Riley Hospital books. The total amount of the sale is credited to the organization making the sale and the name of the organization thus goes down through the life of the hospital, in the permanent records, as having had a part in the construction. The amount subscribed by each individual is also made and kept permanently in the institution.

James W. Carr, general secretary of the Riley Hospital for Children is in charge of the campaign for funds and will be glad to supply information, literature or speakers in any community of the state.

Members of the Riley Executive Committee are:

TO PAINT CONTAINERS RED

State Fire Marshall Rules on Painting of all Gasoline Containers

Indianapolis, Ind., May 26—The rules promulgated by the State Fire Marshal have the force of law and must be observed as the law, John D. Cramer, Deputy State Fire Marshal and chief inspector of the Fire Marshal's department, declares in calling attention to the fact that all cans, tanks and containers used for the purpose of handling and carrying gasoline must be painted red, to distinguish them from containers of other fluids. The intent of this rule is to prevent the confusion of gasoline with kerosene, a mistake not infrequently made with disastrous results wherever quantities of both fluids are kept or used.

Mr. Cramer has issued notices to his inspectors and to assistant fire marshals to maintain strict vigilance on gasoline containers and to enforce the ruling to the letter.

WILL CAMPAIGN ON FRONT PORCH

President Coolidge, Like the Late President Harding, Will Use Front Porch in Campaign

NO PLANS DEFINITE YET

So Far The President Has Not Replied to Invitations Concerning Summer Speeches

By LAWRENCE MARTIN
(U. P. Staff Correspondent)

Washington, May 26—President Coolidge, having demonstrated to Washington recently that the front porch of the white house can be used as a porch ordinarily is, intends to conduct his campaign for the presidency from there, just as Mr. Harding conducted his from the porch of his home in Marion.

Mr. Coolidge recently surprised white house attaches by sitting out on the north porch, where nobody ever sits. Heretofore, the president or his family, wishing to relax a moment, have used the more secluded south porch, which looks out over the handsome grounds of the executive mansion, towards the Washington monument.

The president has found the white house very comfortable. Mrs. Coolidge too, likes it. They have decided against a "summer white house" though they could have their pick of half a dozen places in New England or elsewhere. But they will stay right here, using the yacht Mayflower for trips down the Potomac, with possibly an occasional cruise beyond the Virginia capes.

No long campaign trips have been projected for Mr. Coolidge. He probably will make a few trips to deliver speeches, but he wants to do as little of that as possible. The only circumstance likely to change the program would be an obvious unavoidable need for the candidate personally to take charge of his campaign, to swing around the circle and appeal directly to the voters for their support. Even then Mr. Coolidge would leave Washington with reluctance. His political methods depend much more on organization and the tried agencies that have won so many campaigns, rather than on the oratorical appeal of the candidate himself.

Mr. Coolidge is not overly fond of speechmaking. He does not wish to subject himself to the strain of long campaign trips, and it is one of his beliefs that a President, while in office, has no right to absent himself for long periods from his post, even to insure his election.

Many invitations are being received at the white house for speeches this summer. Most of them have received thus far no definite answer. They have been acknowledged, with the assurance that the President will give them his consideration. A little later on, a selection will be made.

Hall of Fame

Thomas Edison, himself a candidate for the Hall of Fame, unveils a statue of Joseph Henry, who invented the electro-magnet—one of ten busts to be unveiled in New York University's Hall of Fame.

and the President will accept those which to him and his managers seem best to fit in with the campaign strategy.

Tipton—One room school houses will soon be a thing of the past in Prairie township, Tipton county. J. B. Rayl, township trustee, has advertised for sale the five remaining one-room school properties.

Lafayette—Henry Coes suffered a broken leg when he attempted to stop a runaway cow.

THREE UNUSUAL DEATHS

Result From Accidental Ignition of Celluloid Articles

Indianapolis, Ind., May 26—Three unusual deaths, all resulting from the accidental ignition of celluloid toilet articles, have occurred in Indiana in the last several weeks, it is shown by reports to the State Fire Marshal. In every case children were victims. In the most recent case, which occurred at Brazil, a celluloid comb being used to comb a child's hair caught fire and started flames which were fatal to the child.

Fire Marshal Newman T. Miller announced these reports with the admonition to parents to remember that celluloid is highly flammable and should never be used or placed near gas jets, electric heaters, hot pipes or any other such utilities commonly found in homes.

RAIL DISSOLUTION SOUGHT

Cleveland, Ohio, May 26—Dissolution of the domination of the New York Central railway company over the Big Four, Michigan-Central and all subsidiary lines covering half of the United States was asked in a suit filed in federal court here. The suit charges the combination is a violation of the Sherman anti-trust act and also unconstitutional, asks that a receiver be named.
